Secretary of Labor Perkins Unhappy Over Rebuffs by President

WASHINGTON—One of the most significant behind-the-scenes developments in inner White House circles is the way the President has quietly but definitely shelved pro-labor-minded Secretary Frances Perkins as one of his counsellors.

Until recently she was always consulted on policies affecting labor. But on three consecutive occasions Roosevelt either has not sought her views or rejected them when given.

Miss Perkins opposed renewal of the auto code unless it was revised to give labor a better break. But the President turned the entire question over to Don Richberg.

On the day the code was renewed Miss Perkins tried repeatedly to get in touch with the "Assistant President", and although only a few blocks separated them she was unable to reach him.

She did not know the code had been extended until informed late that night by newsmen she met at a White House reception.

A week later when the President sent the cigarette code to her for an expression of opinion she recommended certain pro-labor changes. The code was signed by Roosevelt without change.

Miss Perkins has sided with the Senate Liberals on the prevailing wage issue. But the President has not once consulted her about one matter.

And now she has received another rebuff.

For several months Miss Perkins has been pressing the A. F. of L.'s demand on Roosevelt that labor be given another member on the NRA board. The retirement of Dr. Harry A. Millis from the National Labor Relations Board seemed to open the way for such a change.

Miss Perkins proposed that he be replaced by Professor Walton H. Hamilton who is now in the NRA Board and that a laborite be appointed to the NRA in Hamilton's place.

The President appeared sold on the plan.

But at this point, "Assistant President" Richberg stepped in.

He vigorously opposed any change in the NRA board line-up. He had devised the board, he declared, and to add another labor member would "throw it out of balance."

So Miss Perkins' plan went glimmering.

But to insiders there are signs that she is far from happy.

The People's Voice

North Carolina's engaging Bob Reynolds was one Senator who really got emphatic reverberations from his home-folks for opposing the President in the work-relief wage controversy.

Bob voted for the McCarran prevailing wage amendment. When this momentous word reached Beaufort County, N. C. a trial was in progress in the Superior Court.

This fact, however, did not disturb one of the attorneys, H. S. Ward, a former member of Congress who was known in the House as "Hot-Stuff."

Ward interrupted the trial as follows:

"If Your Honor please, I have a matter which I think is more important than this case. I have just received word that Bob Reynolds voted against the President and I think we ought to recess this case so the Bar Association can meet and discuss the matter."

"I think that is a good idea, Mr. Ward," replied the judge. "The Court will take a recess for an hour."

Whereupon the Beaufort County Bar Association convened in solemn conclave, and after debating Senator Reynold's action, adopted a resolution that his vote in favor of the McCarran amendment "was not representative of

SENATE READY TO VOTE NEW RELIEF LAWS

U. S. to Prevent Wholesale Ouster of Workers, Solons Believe

DAVEY AGAIN TALKS

Again Asks FERA to Take Over Relief

COLUMBUS, March 7— Undaunted by the previous flat refusal of the federal government to relieve Ohio of the burden of administering relief, Governor Davey today once more urged Federal Relief Administrator Hopkins to "place responsibility for the present relief set-up in Ohio squarely where it belongs—with the federal government."

At the same time the governor renewed his request that "a thorough investigation of the administration of relief in Ohio should be made, and the extravagances and abuses eliminated."

But since in his opinion "such action appears to be unattainable," he made the second request that that the state be relieved of all responsibility for the present relief organization.

Do Not Solve Issue

"Unfortunately, Mr. Hopkins' intemperate and abusive remarks concerning me personally will not help solve the relief problem in Ohio," said Davey.

Meanwhile, the state senate pointed the way toward enactment of a new relief law which will give

Hopkins Silent

WASHINGTON, March 7— Emergency Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins today declined to comment on the second request of Gov. Martin L. Davey of Ohio, for the FERA to take over relief administration in Ohio.

He said he had not yet answered the governor's first letter, received Tuesday, in which the governor criticised the present relief set-up in his state.

HEIRESS VICTIM OF GAS, EXPERT TELLS

PINEHURST, N. C., March 7 — Beautiful Elva Statler Davidson, heiress to the Statler hotel millions, was a victim of "silent death"—lethal carbon monoxide that turns the blood to water—Dr. I. C. Carpenter, autopsy pathologist tod a coroner's jury today.

The engine of her 12-cylinder sports car spread the gas through the Davidson garage early Wednesday morning, last week, and the 22-year-old girl who came to this fashionable winter resort a bride two months ago went quickly, painlessly to her death.

Dr. Carpenter, professor of pathology at Wake Forest college of medicine, who performed an autopsy on the body, was the first witness today when the investigation was resumed.

The pathologist said a complete microscopic examination confirmed carbon monoxide poisoning as the cause of death.

Mrs. Davidson's body could not, however, have fallen into the position in which it was found had she been seated in her automobile, he said.

Hopkins Cracks Down

Harry Hopkins
Governor Davey

Federal Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins has bluntly refused to take over Ohio's relief problem. In a bristling letter to Gov. Martin L. Davey, Hopkins said he expected Ohio to continue to furnish $2,000,000 a month toward its own relief expenses. Governor Davey had requested the federal government to assume control of Ohio relief.

MANY PAYING YEAR'S TAXES TO TREASURER

Numerous Delinquent Taxes Being Paid, Hoffman Discloses

OHIO SURVEY MADE

Stream of County Tax Payers is Steady

The depleted coffers of the Pickaway-co treasurer were being replenished rapidly today with Treasurer Earl Hoffman reporting collections the best since he assumed office several years ago.

No figures are yet available but Mr. Hoffman said Thursday that taxpayers have been steadily coming to the various windows in his office since it was announced the real estate books were open.

"Not only are they paying taxes in such a fine manner," the treasurer said, "but many Circleville and Pickaway-co property owners are paying back taxes and many more are paying their taxes for the entire year at this time.

Pay Full Year

"Instead of asking their taxes for the half-year," Mr. Hoffman stated "many are inquiring concerning the entire year and paying them.

A press association recently surveyed the state to learn how well taxes have been collected in some of the metropolitan centers.

Franklin-co for the first time in five years reports a decrease in the accumulation of delinquent real estate taxes.

In Cuyahoga-co accumulated delinquencies on the 1934 duplicate were only 10 per cent while in 1933 they were 40 per cent and in 1932 65 per cent.

The Cuyahoga-co treasurer attributed the improvement to better economic conditions, home owners loan corporation aid and partial payment of taxes under the Whittemore act.

M'CRACKEN FREED

WASHINGTON, Mar. 7 — Jail doors swung outward today for William P. MacCracken, assistant secretary of commerce for air in the Hoover administration.

MacCracken completed a ten days' sentence in the district jail for contempt of the senate. During his incarceration he did clerical work.

His imprisonment arose out of the air mail investigation. As attorney for several aviation companies, he permitted destruction of papers in his office which had been subpoenaed by the senate.

MacCracken left the jail by the backdoor to avoid photographers.

FOWLER ARRESTED ON THEFT CHARGE

Chester Fowler, this city, is in the county jail under $500 bond after pleading not guilty to breaking and entering the shanty of Tillman Brown in Walnut-twp and stealing household goods.

Limburger Now Fit For Mail, Determine

WASHINGTON, March 7— The post office department has "okayed" limburger cheese in Uncle Sam's mail.

Until recently the department had a ruling barring the cheese because its peculiar aroma injured other mail stuffs, the postmaster at Monroe, Wisconsin, demonstrated to the second assistant postmaster general that the pungent ordor characteristic of limburger can be confined if the cheese is wrapped in tinfoil and heavy waxed paper. So the department relaxed its old regulation.

9 KILLED IN UTAH BLAST

Bodies Blown to Pieces as Nitroglycerine Explodes at Oil Well

ST. GEORGE, Utah, March 7— An inquest was ordered today into the deaths of at least nine persons who were blown to pieces, burned to death or struck down by falling timbers when 2,800 pounds of nitroglycerin exploded at the Arrowhead Oil company's new well, five miles south of here.

Bodies of five were recovered during the night. At least four other persons are known to have been killed.

County Attorney Orval Hafen, who went to the scene of the disaster last night and took charge of the investigation, said that many charred bits of human flesh and bone were scatered about and identification of some bodies would be impossible. He will continue the search for bodies at daylight.

Hafen said there was a possibility that several others may have been killed, Miss Rosemond Snow, daughter of Mrs. Joseph Snow, incurred serious injuries.

Workmen were attempting to lower 800 pounds of nitroglycerin into the well, Hafen said, to blast an obstacle the drillers had encountered. A number of friends, about 25 persons in all, had gathered at the well to witness the spectacular explosion.

As the nitroglycerin was being placed in the hole, it apparently rubbed against something, causing friction which set it off.

A ton of nitroglycerin in a storehouse a few feet from the well also exploded. Both the well derrick and storehouse were blown to bits.

MOTHER DEFENDS HUSBAND'S KILLER

STEUBENVILLE, March 7— Mrs. Charlies W. Loy today branded her slain husband and the father of her 13 children as "a brute" as she rushed to the defense of her 17-year-old daughter, Ethelender, who shot and killed him yesterday.

The girl has been released under $1,000 bond.

In defending the girl's action, Mrs. Loy stated:

"No one knows what I have suffered. He was brutal and fought with me all the time. The poor girl did what she thought was right. Now her life is ruined. My boys know what it has been like. They often wanted to take my part."

Ethelender told police she shot her father after he had attempted to attack Mrs. Loy with a butcher knife. The shooting occurred in the Loy houseboat tied up near the Steubenville wharf.

HOLLYWOOD, Mar. 7 — Anita Page, blonde film actress, today sought annulment of her marriage to Nacio Herb Brown, song writer, on the ground Brown's divorce from his first wife, Jeanne Borlini, will not become final until June 5.

CAN HUEY BEAT SENATE LEADERS?

Senator Robinson — Senator Long — Senator Harrison

Threats of Senator Huey Long of Louisiana to defeat for re-election Senator Joseph T. Robinson, left, of Arkansas, majority leader, and Senator Pat Harrison, right, of Mississippi, next in rank, may cause a strong anti-Long lineup. The Roosevelt administration is expected to put all it influence behind the two be-leaguered senators, who must stand for renomination (tantamount to election in the south) a year hence. Senator Long's term also expires at the same time. He has said he may run for the governorship of Louisiana instead—as Baton Rouge serves as a better focal point than Washington for "extending his dictatorial powers" into other southern states bordering on Louisiana.

TURKS CROWD GREEK BORDER

Fear Civil War May Result in Trouble; Report Veniseloz Fleeing

By International News Service

Fear of international complications from the Greek civil war was heightened today by renewed reports of heavy Turkish troop concentration on the border.

Rebel forces around the Greek armored cruiser Averoff cowed Mytilene, capital of the ancient island of Lesbos off the Turkish coast and claimed it in the name of the revolution.

Sub-zero temperatures in Macedonia delayed the long-expected decisive clash between the rival Greek factions but sporadic encounters occurred, with reports of butchery and brutal fighting by both sides reaching Bulgarian towns.

Bulgaria rushed additional troops to her border, augmenting her garrisons to virtual war strength. A report reached London that former Premier Venizelos of Greece ,reputed "master mind" of the insurrection, had fled Crete for Alexandria, was unconfirmed.

General Nicholas Plastiras, exiled Greek revolutionary and a mystery figure in the present crisis, arrived at Venice, reportedly bound for Piraeus, Greece.

PIPELINE FIRM TO BEGIN TASK NEAR APRIL 10

Cady Receives Letter From Phipps Following Gordon's Wire

OBSTACLES CITED

Contracts Let for Lines, Phipps Claims

The Universal Pipeline Co., under contract with the city to build a line to this city to furnish gas, will start laying its pipe about April 10, W. H. Phipps, of 1748 Bryden-rd, Columbus, president of the organization, informed council Wednesday evening through a communication to Mayor W. B. Cady.

An ordinance giving the pipeline company permission to lay pipes to the city gates was granted by council quite a while ago but no action has been taken by the Universal. Councilman Ben H. Gordon wired Phipps this week asking him the company's plans and received an immediate answer: "Yes we will build the pipeline and supply Circleville with gas." The wire was signed by Phipps.

Writes to Mayor

In Wednesday's mail, Mayor Cady received the following letter from Phipps:

"We have inquiry from Ben Gordon, member of council, if we intend to build and pipeline and supply you with gas. We have let the contract for the entire line to Circleville with a spur to Jackson and we have contracted for drilling 12 wells on leases in Jackson and vicinity.

"We have also purchased gas in Kentucky in two contracts of 50,000,000 feet each daily production and are now arranging for outright purchase of 50,000 acres of gas production territory.

"We have had many things to do and we have been disappointed in some matters, We had our lines fully financed but pressure was brought to get the party to withdraw and he did so. As a result after much effort Mr. Gardner and I went to New York Feb. 9 and arranged financing that can not be scared off so that is out of the way.

"A firm with which we have a contract for delivery of pipeline supplies was threatened if they furnished us such supplies the other party making the threat would not buy any more pipe from that firm.

"I am reciting these matters to show you the obstacles we have had to overcome.

"We expect to be laying our pipes by April 10 and will proceed as rapidly as possible to your city."

Several other cities including Portsmouth, Chillicothe and Jackson have granted the pipeline company contracts to bring fuel to the city gates.

No Gas Ordinance

Although the gas company presented an ordinance to Chillicothe council last Monday calling for a slightly higher rate no such offer was heard at the local meeting Wednesday evening. Usually the gas company appears in Chillicothe council meeting on Monday evening then comes here Wednesday of the same week. The offer, which has been forecast by E. M. Tharp, general manager of the Ohio Fuel in this district, will be made within a short time, it is almost certain.

RIOTING AGAIN STRIKES CUBA; ARMY CALLED

University, Customs Offices Controlled; Teachers Ordered to Return

HAVANA, March 7—Troops today occupied Havana university, took over internal tax and customs offices and imposed a rigorous newspaper censorship as the government's hand finally fell heavily on the revolutionary strike movement.

The cabinet of President Carlos Mendieta, prodded by the powerful Col. Fulgencio Baptista, issued an ultimatum to 20,000 teachers striking throughout the nation, ordering them to return Monday or lose their jobs. Government employees who joined the strike today were dismissed.

This drastic action came in the early morning hours after a day of terror in which one person was killed and more than ten wounded as students tried to induce government workers to participate in the walkout aimed to force President Mendieta's resignation.

Occupation of the university was staged without bloodshed, when a battalion of soldiers ejected a hundred professors who had been holding an all-night meeting and scores of loitering students.

Cabinet members charged that the university, which had enjoyed autonomy for years until today, was now a center for illicit plotting against the government, and a depository for explosives.

All the city was tense, with heavily armed soldiers and sailors stopping all autos, street cars, and pedestrians, searching for weapons and explosives, to prevent a recurrence of yesterday's bombing and shootings.

Police ordered all newspapers, with the exception of one English language publication, to submit copies to the department of the interior before they could be circulated.

Hundreds of tourists faced difficulties with the military-controlled customs, with five ships, including the cruise ship Columbia, due in port today.

A group of armed men invaded the quarters of the anti-government radio station CMX during the night, and smashed equipment valued at $12,000.

A BUILDER AND TONIC

THERE'S no better builder and tonic than Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, for it tones up the stomach and the blood. Mrs. Vera Halstead of 3502 Flemming Road, Flint, Mich., said: "My face broke out with disagreeable pimples. One bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cleared up my blood and the pimples disappeared. Later when I became all rundown and felt tired, I took a bottle of the 'Discovery' and it soon had me feeling better and stronger, and I have since enjoyed good health. I believe the 'Discovery' is the best tonic to obtain quick results."

What Should the Budget Be?

Every family is a rule unto itself, and no budget schedule can be applicable to all cases.

For a family with an income of $2,000, the most useful generalization is: savings, 10 per cent; food, 25 per cent; rent, 20 per cent; operating costs, 15 per cent; clothing, 15 per cent; and development, 15 per cent.

Statistics show, however, that more than half the families of the United States have an income of about $1,000. A family of this type attempting to set up a budget on the same percentages as for $2,000 incomes might find itself with a savings account but undernourished bodies.

The lower the income, the higher is the percentage which must be spent for food. Necessities, such as food, shelter, and some of the operating and clothing costs must be met first, at the expense of the savings account.

After a budget is planned, considering the resources and needs of the family, the next step is to try to live by that plan. This requires every bit as much cooperation and understanding on the part of the family members as it did to make the budget. All the time and effort put into the plan is lost unless the family tries to live by it.

Some type of records or accounts is necessary, and there are many household account books, good and bad, on the market. The Ohio State University home economics extension service has an account book available at a small cost. The actual keeping of records does take some time, but if, by avoiding leaks, it means a saving of money, then the time is well spent.

Simplicity is to be desired in the household account book, with headings not too complicated.

There are, of course, many debatable items, as; where shall the ice bill be recorded, under food or operating costs? The plan there is not to worry about it, but place it one place or the other, always being consistent.

The record book should be kept in a convenient place—a drawer in a table in the dining room, or in a desk—if the home-maker is fortunate enough to have one.

FARMERS DENIED AAA OPPORTUNITY

ATHENS, March 7—Farmers of this county will not be able to participate under the federal cornhog reduction program since the county commissioners have failed to appropriate $2,000 for extension work in the county. Last year farmers received $32,000 as a result of the program.

SALES TAX RULINGS

The sales tax section of the State Tax Commission has issued a number of rulings affecting various lines of business. Those of interest to Pickaway-co residents will be published in this column at intervals.

SALES OF MEDICINE

Sales of medicine or compounds on prescriptions when such sales are made by pharmactists or druggists are subject to the tax imposed by Amended House Bill No. 134. The tax is to be computed on the entire selling price of the article so sold and no deduction may be made for the professional services which enter into the making of the finished article.

SALES OF EYE GLASSES

An optician, oculist, or optometrist engaged in selling glasses in connection with his services is a vendor within the meaning of Amended House Bill No. 134 and as such must procure a vendor's license and collect the tax on all sales.

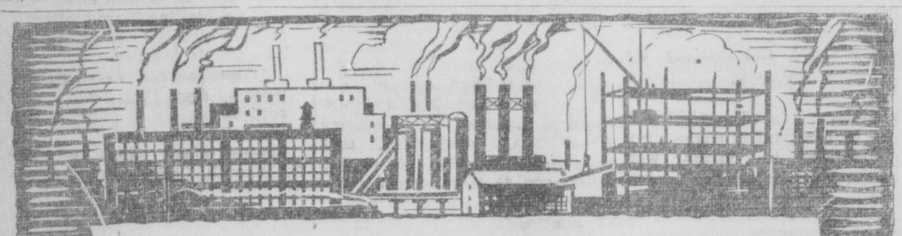
The tax basis will be the selling price of the eye glasses without any deduction being made from that price as a charge for the services which enter into the making of the finished product.

In the event charges for professional services or examinations which are rendered apart from the making of said eye glasses are itemized separately, the tax will not be computed thereon.

PHYSICIANS

A physician for the purpose of Amended House Bill No. 134 is the consumer of the various articles which he uses in connection with the rendition of his professional services. In all cases where the physician is actively engaged in dispensing medicinal supplies or selling articles of tangible personal property not directly in connection with his examination or professional service, he is a vendor within the meaning of the act, must procure a vendor's license, and collect the tax on all sales in the manner prescribed by Section 3 of the act.

Milk cure—that is, a diet consisting at first of milk only—is a very old remedy, since it is mentioned by Hippocrates, who lived about 460 to 357 B. C.



GOOD NEWS

INDUSTRIAL development in the territory served by the Norfolk and Western Railway continued its steady advance during 1934.

Last year, 168 new industries and additions to existing plants, involving an investment of $17,806,200 and employing 13,329 persons, were established along the railroad's lines. But that isn't all. This march of progress was not halted during the depression. Here is the record:

Year	New Industries Established	Investment In New Industries	Number Employees In New Industries
1931	145	$ 7,275,000	4,315
1932	180	14,542,190	7,215
1933	152	19,008,607	8,131
1934	168	17,806,200	13,329

The Norfolk and Western traverses a territory richly endowed by nature, and one that offers to industry an unusual combination of advantages so essential to economic production and distribution. The development in this great territory, extending westward from the world-famous Port of Norfolk, on the Atlantic Coast, through the heart of Virginia (and into the Carolinas and Maryland), through the vast coal fields of West Virginia, and thence into the Ohio River Valley to the Middle West at Cincinnati and Columbus, Ohio, is a matter of vital interest to the railway. This interest has been translated into definite action.

The railroad maintains at Roanoke, Va., an efficient and well organized Industrial and Agricultural Department, staffed by experts who devote their entire time and energies to the continued growth of the territory. Their services and advice are always available to industries seeking new locations and to industries located on the railway.

The consistent industrial development along its lines is a source of much gratification to the Norfolk and Western. The railway is justly proud of the part it has played in this fine achievement.

This Warehouse Clearance Sale is the result of combining end of season stocks from several stores, new, specially selected values from the recent Chicago Housewares Exposition, and after inventory clean-up of surplus stocks in their big Columbus Warehouse. Selected merchandise—all new—has been assembled in one great group and is being sent to Circleville to be quickly closed out at remarkably low prices during this two-day sale.

In considering the 18 cities in which Cussins & Fearn has stores, Circleville was selected as one of the best to conduct this sale, because of the response Circleville people have given to Cussins & Fearn in the past. Huge crowds are expected by Mr. McCord, manager of the Circleville store—great preparations have been made to handle them. People are expected to attend from 40 to 50 miles around. Extra sales people, extra wrappers, and extra space has been taken for sale merchandise. At Delaware where a similar sale was held a short time ago, crowds awaited the opening of the doors on Friday to obtain choice selection on Friday to obtain choice selections of the opening hour values and then thronged the store for the entire two days. Similar crowds are expected to attend the Circleville Sale.

MOTOR TRAGEDY

MADRID—Juan Espinosa, 16, jumped on the running board of an automobile which had just bowled over his sister Maria at La Linea and murdered Jose Vieto, whom he took to be the chauffeur. The boy drove his knife through Vieto's neck, failing to notice in his excitement that Vieto was a passenger and not the chauffeur. Maria, the cause of the drama, was only bruised slighty.

COLLEGE SPEAKER

DR. ROBERT L. CALHOUN

Local ministers and laymen have been invited by Ohio Wesleyan university officials to attend the annual Merrick Lectures which will begin Sunday night, March 10, in Gray chapel at Delaware.

The lectures this year will be delivered by Dr. Robert I. Calhoun, professor of historic theology at the Yale Divinity School, New Haven, Conn. They will be given five successive nights, ending Thursday night, March 14.

"The Present Force of Platonic Thought" is the general subject of Dr. Calhoun's lectures. The five specific subjects will be "Problems of a Post-War Culture," "Platonic 'Ideas' and the Natural Sciences," "A Philosophy of Social Planning," "Inner Balance as Basic in the Good Life" and "The Transcendent Good and the Living God."

The Merrick lectures are given annually by some outstanding religious leader and are based on experimental and practical religion. They are named after the Rev. Frederick Merrick, who gave 51 years of his life to the service of the university, 13 of them as president.

The Jordan river, principal stream of Palestine, is called Esh-Sheriah by the Arabs.

Tell Dramas Resumed

GENEVA—Altdorf, the unspoilt home-town of Switzerland's national hero, is making preparations to present Schiller's drama "William Tell" on Sunday afternoons, from the middle of July up to and including Sept. 8.

After an interval of four years these performances were given again last year in the modern Tell Playhouse. Some 200 native actors lend their talents.

WE HAVE INTERVIEWED GROCERS ABOUT Good Tea

And this is what we have learned—

Grocers will tell you that good Black teas enjoy the overwhelming preference of tea drinkers. In fact, their figures prove that three of each four cups of tea consumed in America contain good Black tea. This, say grocers, is proof aplenty that teas of the Black type are decidedly more satisfying.

And tea experts confirm the opinions of grocers . . . and of those wise tea lovers who have made good Black teas their choice. They say that good Black teas offer you a better brew . . . a richer, full-flavored drink with a strength that is certain to satisfy.

INDIA TEA

If you are not already serving good Black tea, do so today!

• To get genuinely good Black tea, buy India Tea. You can easily identify packages containing it. Simply look for the trademark to the left on the package, no matter what brand you choose.

It is a roomier car—with more leg room—wider, deeper seats. It strikes a new note in streamlined beauty. Interior fittings are almost luxurious. Large, soft-pressure tires are standard. Safety glass all around comes at no extra cost.

3,000 EXPECTED AT WOMEN'S CONVENTION

Three thousand women, 2,500 of whom are voting delegates, are expected to attend the General Federation of Women's clubs convention to be held in Detroit June 4-12. Many Ohio clubs have elected their representatives and it is expected this state will have one of the largest delegations present.

Ohio is especially interested in the convention this year since Dr. Josephine L. Peirce, of Lima, is one of the candidates for president to be elected June 10.

Mrs. Roberta C. Lawson, of Tulsa, Okla., is Dr. Peirce's opponent. The two candidates are good friends. They traveled together to the Pan-Pacific conference for women held in Hawaii last summer and shared the same room at Federation headquarters during the mid-winter board meeting in the capital in January.

Both candidates are talented women. Dr. Peirce, now second vice president of the general federation, moved toward the top in the organization through her work in family finance. She established the first insurance policy for women in the home through a score of insurance companies, authored three booklets on family finance, which have won recognization in educational circles. She now heads the standardization committee of the organization which is working to obtain standardization manufactured foods with commercial labels. For years, prominent in Ohio welfare work, she has been named the only women member of the Ohio Relief commission by both Ex-governor George White and Gov. Martin L. Davey.

Mrs. Lawson, now first vice president of the general federation, has a long record of work in Oklahoma clubs and her state considers her one of its foremost women. She has an excellent musical education, having studied with Scharwenka. She gives programs of Indian music and her museum of American Indian history is said to be one of the most extensive in the country. She is a member of Will Rogers' committee to dispense his charity fund for needy Oklahomans.

Taking the Mystery out of Banking

No air of mystery hangs over the way we do business in this bank. While we admittedly do follow very strict rules in the handling of many transactions, there are good reasons for these rules, and our officers take especial pains to see that these reasons are explained and understood.

As a result, we find that our depositors and those who have occasion to borrow money, are ready and willing to work in friendly harmony with us. We say "yes" to borrowers as frequently as conditions permit. But, when we do have to say "No," we do not lose a friend.

There is no mystery in banking at this bank.

RETAIL MERCHANTS

FOLLOWING SUGGESTIONS made at a recent meeting of the Chamber of Commerce, Circleville merchants may organize themselves into a group to function as a retail merchants' committee affiliated with the Chamber of Commerce. This, we believe, is a progressive move and one that will develop into a worthwhile organization, not only to the merchants themselves but to the entire community.

As the speaker pointed out, local merchants should not be concerned about local competition, but they should be concerned about competitors in near by cities. Local merchants should work hand in hand to promote local business, to increase Circleville's trading area, and to make Circleville a better place to trade. When that is done, it is up to the individual merchant to promote his own line and to get his share of the business that comes to the city. If he can't get it today, his competitor will. And it works both ways—perhaps some of his competitor's customers will come to him tomorrow. If Circleville's business can be increased $50,000 a year, wouldn't each and every merchant have a proportionate share in that increase, according to the amount of effort put forth and the service rendered?

We believe the local Chamber of Commerce, along with the retail merchants' committee, can and will accomplish a great deal for the city and community as a whole. We would like to see a definite program outlined — a program that would have for its goal the completion of any worthwhile projects that would help Circleville — and no slowing down until the goal is reached and the work finished.

LENT

WHAT place should the ancient church custom of Lent have in modern life? It is remarked that this custom originated in an age when there was a much greater tendency for people to retire to lives of severe asceticism, people of that type would feel that a period of withdrawal from ordinary worldly activities would bring human nature into a closer touch with spiritual realities.

Today we have gone on to a very practical age, when people demand that any religious custom justify itself by results achieved for humanity. But the same old faults that debased human life centuries ago still afflict us. There is the same selfish attitude, the same grasping for material things, the same disposition to ignore the true meaning of life.

As we hurry through this world, it is well to ask from time to time, what are we here for, and what are we expected to do, and what power placed us here? Lent offers answers to those questions. Not so many people observe Lent now by strenuous exercises of physical self denial. But there are plenty of them who do feel it beneficial to make some personal sacrifice, who go slow on frivolous pursuits, who listen to spiritual voices. There is no doubt that such ones gain a benefit.

The present age overdoes the pursuit of pleasure and material satisfactions. It drives so hard that the mind and body are worn out before their time. A benefit is gained merely by slowing up on these pursuits, even if there was no religious stimulation. If in addition, people seek help from sources of spiritual inspiration, there will be a double gain.

RISING FOOD PRICES

THERE will not be much elation on the part of the prudent housewife in Secretary Wallace's announcement that food costs on the average for the first six months of 1935 will be 11 per cent higher than in the last six months of 1934. If she happens to be one of the millions of women in families on the dole, she is liable to be bewildered and may even be angry "on principle."

It is one of the sad ironies of the depression that the aid given in a planned economy to enable a large producing group to increase its prices and thus come more largely into the buyer class should impose the severest hardships on the group least capable of bearing them. When food prices are up 11 per cent it requires no mathematician to see that in this field the buying power of the charity dollar has shrunk 10 per cent. And this applies equally to diminishing little hoards of "rainy day"' dollars in millions of families.

Food prices, as a matter of fact, have not risen so sharply as those of other necessities, many of which are being done without or used more sparingly by the desperately poor. From this situation there is no prospect of speedy escape. Actually in the AAA and elsewhere the government is fostering higher prices. The theory on which it is acting is that if and when prices generally get back to the prevailing levels of 1925 and 1926, production and consumption will more nearly balance. Then, it is assumed, there will be gainful employment at fair pay for all the able bodies who desire it and prosperity will be with us again.

GYPSY GIRL

THE STORY OF AN IMPASSIONED ROMANCE

by McDONALD FEADER

FICTION

READ THIS FIRST:

Consuelo, a beautiful gypsy girl, longs to dance with all the world at her feet. In love with her are the Dummy, a deaf mute, and Marcu, both members of her tribe. She has only hate for her mother, Anica, but is extremely fond of her father, Girtza.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 2

CONSUELO LEFT the fire then and flung her arms around her father.

"Always for you, papa."

His roughened hand stroked the dusty blackness of her hair.

"Always?" His eyes twinkled. "Always, is a long, long time, little frog."

She pulled his beard and kissed the tip of his nose.

"Then for a long, long time I shall be good, wise one, but when I turn bad—oh, what a bad one I'll be!"

"A bad one you are now!" A new voice spoke. "Falling all over the gorgio sheriff like a common slut!" A tall handsome fellow stood beside them, arms crossed, earrings glittering.

"Marcu!" The one stern word of reproval from the father.

Silence.

"It is true." It was Anica, the mother. "She acted like a real bad one. If that gorgio was to get her alone—no telling what would happen, and no one could blame him."

"I'd cut his white neck, low dog that he is!" growled Marcu.

"And go to the gorgio jail and be hung!" Anica sneered. "She is not worth that."

"Oh, leave me alone, will you? It is my affair if I flirt with the sheriff. It is my affair if I kiss him. It—"

Marcu caught her arm.

"Did you kiss him?" he demanded.

She shook off his hand.

"What is that to you? I would kiss him a thousand times over before I would so much as look on you with favor, conceited fellow!"

"Will you stop this haggling?" Girtza bellowed at them. "Get back to your work, Anica. Now you two get along friendly together. I'm tired of this all of the time. Marcu, you have no right over my daughter—not yet!"

"When am I going to marry her then?"

"In time."

"Not if I know it," snapped Consuelo.

"Consuelo!" Again Girtza.

"Listen, papa, I'll never marry him. I hate him!"

Marcu laughed. His hand slipped into the folds of the silk blouse and drew forth a small wad of paper. Instantly the eyes of the girl were upon him.

"A little trinket I picked up today," he said.

"What is it?" Consuelo asked.

Leisurely, he unfolded the paper, his eyes intent upon the rapt face before him.

"Something for the girl who loves me," he said.

Consuelo drew back, contempt written on her face. But then, almost against her will, her eyes were drawn to the bright thing in his hand. An exclamation of delight left her lips and her tan fingers reached for the lovely thing.

"A bracelet of gold, with a ruby!" she gasped, eyes fastened upon it. "How beautiful!"

"For the girl who loves me," Marcu repeated.

For an instant her smile flashed to him. Quick as lightning her fingers grabbed for the ornament. However before they possessed it, the man pulled her to him and his warm lips found hers. He held her passionately, the blood surging to his brain.

There was a mad scream from the girl as she tore herself from him. She spat upon the ground and rubbed her mouth with the back of her hand.

"Dog! Son of a dog! Thief!" Oath followed oath. She reached out and beat against his chest with her closed fists.

Marcu laughed at her and there was a touch of madness in the sound. He'd have her some day.

"Always is a long, long time."

God, but she was desirable! Perhaps a diamond.

And Girtza watching them, smiled to himself and went back to his card playing. He was thinking what a good wife she would make Marcu. But from the shadows, the Dummy watched, his hands clenched, his heart torn with agony.

As the morning sun peeped over the hill the camp roused itself to the duties of the day. Shouts and good-natured bantering awakened the lazy ones. The embers of last night's fire were stirred and dry sticks added. Soon the kettle of potatoes sang pleasantly through the confusion of the haphazard morning work. Bacon, pilfered the day before, sizzled in the frying pan. Eggs appeared mysteriously from the loose-fitting blouse of one of the men and were fried in the hot grease.

Presently the entire camp had gathered in a circle around the fire and each took his share of food. As Consuelo seated herself cross-legged on the ground, her mother's black eyes wandered to the gaudy bracelet on the girl's arm.

"You might have gotten one for me," she chided Marcu.

"Yes, I might have. One is enough to get me in the gorgio jail without the risk of taking two." Marcu turned to Consuelo. "Don't wear it in town this afternoon, my little lamb."

"Some day I'll have things that aren't stolen." Voice sullen. She reached for another strip of bacon.

"You've had your share, pig," said Anica.

"I suppose I'm to go hungry." Consuelo mouthed the bacon and helped herself to another slice before she continued. "I eat as much as I want. Who is it brings in the silver coins? Not you." The white people pay me to dance for them. They'll pay me twice as much to tell fortunes as they pay you."

Anica turned to Girtza.

"Nice way your daughter talks to her mother."

"Modesty is a virtue in a young girl," Girtza reproved.

"White girls have no virtue, why should I? All right, send me to the wagon—" But before the order came she sprang up and, dancing a little zig-zag step, started for the trail that led to the creek.

Anica moved closer to Girtza and laid her hand on his shoulder. Her face was hidden from him.

"This is what comes of living in this cursed America. When I was a little girl back on the Danube my father would have beaten me if I had dared to say the things she says. You let her sneer in my face and in your face and you're getting so old you don't notice. You've got to do something to her, I tell you, my old one. You neglect your whip and let it hang idle in the wagon. Now it hasn't been so many years that you used to beat me and yet you do not touch the little bad one. A gypsy chief keeps his whip in his hand. Have you forgotten how to be a chief?" Her lips were close to his ear, her hands gripping his shoulders, her voice low so that the others might not hear.

He shook her off.

"Now maybe I am a fool where the girl is concerned but this is not the land where the gypsy is king. There are times when I would cut their throats, these gorgios, these dogs who lord over us. Insult upon insult that I bear from them—" His words were angry, but his face was sad. He looked down at her.

"You are right, my wife. I must be getting old or I would steal the money and pack the tribe back to the old country where we might sing and dance and be free—ah, but even there they are not free, for starvation walks close to their heels. Here we have food and can roam over the roads as we will and because of this I hold back my knife when the gorgio insults me and mine. I have learned that to hold one's temper is a fine thing, and so I have held my temper with you and treated you with kindness and understanding, but now I have had enough. I'll have you say no more about Consuelo. In due time she will marry Marcu and he will have her to contend with and I doubt me but what he'll take pleasure in beating her. As for you—don't try to act as young as she is—and cut out your whining and nagging! You tell me to beat her. Well, I'll tell you, my wife, that I do what I please and my arm is still strong and the whip no weaker. You will not forget it!"

He turned on his heel and walked away from her.

The woman stared after him. She was trembling. She wiped the drops of perspiration that formed on her upper lip. Again she was afraid of him. It had not been for years that he had spoken thus to her.

Consuelo returned from the brook, her face and legs washed, but washed as a child washes—still streaked with dirt. She saw Anica crouched by the fire and instantly her walk became stealthy. She caught the beads in her hand, imprisoning their tell-tale jingle and crossed the clearing to their wagon. With a backward glance she slid into the open end of the van and pulled the faded curtains together.

Heard & Seen

BY KAY JAY

A GET-TOGETHER

That was a fine meeting of the Chamber of Commerce, Tuesday night at the New American hotel. All lines of business, industry, trades and professions were represented, and it's good for them to rub elbows with each other around the dinner table. All have their individual business cares and worries, all have problems to solve that those in other lines know nothing about, but all have one common interest—to unite in making Circleville a bigger and better business center and a better place in which to live.

The speaker of the evening used a word I had never heard before, not an uncommon occurrence by any means. But this word struck me as being applicable to many of us in the ranks. In speaking of leadership in community activities, he stressed that "followship" is just as essential; and, in the language of the street, he said a mouthful. Leadership without "followship" is just as helpless as a quarterback without a football team. There's work to be done by every member of the team, whether in athletics, business, or community welfare, and every resident should put something back into the community which provides him with a livelihood—something in the way of service to his town, it's institutions, and his fellow citizens. It's not a one-man job—it's your job and mine. And it's fine to get together and talk things over.

And the food, an important part of every gathering, was excellent. The steak was as tender as a mother's heart, and one wisecracker at our table said he was going to try to get the name and address of Charley's butcher.

SIGNS OF SPRING

Giving sidewalks in the business section a bath ..... Paper hanger in clean, white overalls, carrying a roll of paper (wall), paste pail and brush, hurrying along the street ..... Baseballs and bats on display in store windows ..... Harry Steinhauser without a coat ..... Store doors wide open ..... Almost everybody washing windows ..... Demand for garden seeds ..... Boxes of onion sets on the sidewalk ..... Housewife, wearing man's hat and canvass gloves, puttering around the lawn ..... Husbands eating up town while house-cleaning is going on ..... Odor of burning rubbish in the air ..... Night crawlers ..... Arguments about fishing ..... Sassafras tea .... Rambling along the river looking for a likely spot to fish .... Washing the family bus .... Kids up early in the morning .... Mykrantz' drug store dog, "Pluto," asleep on the sidewalk ..... Boys with muddy knees and bruised knuckles—marbles.

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND

"Kansas City Princess," the Warner Bros. production now showing at the Grand Theatre, promises to be a milestone in the life of Hugh Herbert, featured comedian in the cast.

For the first time in eight years, Hugh kisses a fair lady in front of the camera.

Moreover, it's only the second time he has kissed an actress for picture purposes.

Hugh broke his long osculatory fast with Glenda Farrell in the final scenes for "Kansas City Princess," while Director William Keighley fervently exhorted him to "make it a good one" as the two pairs of lips met.

AT THE CLIFTONA

Style and cut of gowns worn in Egypt during the time of Cleopatra are almost identical with evening gowns of the present time, it was discovered by Cecil B. DeMille, director of Paramount's "Cleopatra," now at the Cliftona Theatre.

The costumes made up for Claudette Colbert, who plays the title role in the picture, though adhering to authentic detail, are easily adaptable to modern wear.

Dinner Stories

Step by Step

A youngster asked his father how war began. "Well," said his father, "suppose America quarreled with England, and—" "But," interrupted the mother, "America must not quarrel with England." "I know, he answered, "but I am taking a hypothetical instance." "You are misleading the child," said mother. "No, I am not," he answered. "Yes, you are." "I tell you I am not! It's outrageous—" "All right Dad," said the boy. "Don't get excited, I think I know how wars begin."

A Thought for Today

"Wise men lay up knowledge: but the mouth of the foolish is near destruction."
—Proverbs 10:14.

Editorial Of The Day

YOUNG AMERICA'S IDEAL
(Coshocton Tribune)

The average high school youngster values good physical health above everything else, if a check made at Thomas Jefferson high school, in New York City, is any criterion.

Boys and girls at that institution agreed that physical fitness is their chief aspiration. Next to it the boys ranked wisdom, likeability, service, wealth, and fame.

The girls shifted the order a little with the boys in everything save that they valued appreciation of beauty more than world wealth.

If one wanted to be very serious and profound, one probably could draw a number of morals from all this. One could write, for instance, that it all shows a distressing superficiality on the part of the nation's youth, and so on and so forth.

But the more we think about it, the more we feel that it proves only this: that these high school youngsters are normal, healthy youngsters, interested in precisely those things one would expect normal, healthy youngsters to be interested in.

The Epistle of James is the first of the so-called Catholic Epistles of the New Testament.

Foot Gets Into Trouble Because It's Too Covered

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

IN DISCUSSING diseases of the hand a few weeks ago, we took occasion to point out that the nature of the work the hand does is logically responsible for its most frequent disabilities. Its most frequent disabilities are infections, and they occur because the hand is the prehensile organ of the body—thrust out to handle the outside world, constantly exposed to heat, cold, abrasions and cuts.

Dr. Clendening

The same sort of a thesis may be made out for the foot. Its difficulties arise from two sources—one because it is the weight-bearing organ of the body. The other is just the opposite of the cause of the hand's troubles. The hand gets into trouble because it isn't protected enough. The foot gets into trouble because in a state of civilization it is constantly protected. By shoes.

Shoes! Would we have been more miserable or less miserable if we had never learned to wear shoes? If we did not wear them, our feet would be just as subject to infection as our hands. That is one score for shoes. And if we had developed sidewalks and paving stones and not developed shoes, the cold would have caused more rheumatism and chilblains and such like things. There are probably many products of civilization, such as street car steps and automobile clutches, whose existence depends solely on the fact that we had already invented shoes. I don't know whether anybody sees what I am driving at, but to me it seems a profound and touching bit of philosophic thought.

At any rate, shoes were invented. The trouble is, they have been modified constantly. The first shoes were all right—sandals protecting the soles, with a few thongs binding them loosely to the ankle. The toes were left relatively free. They weren't rubbed by anything, and there was ventilation and a chance for the foot to "breathe".

Soft slippers and heavy soles were all right, too, but then man's ancient enemy came on the scene—the lust for beauty. The feet didn't look pretty enough in sandals and slippers, so more elaborate designs came in. In the northern climates, away from our old ancestral home around the equator, more protection was needed.

At any rate we have the abomination of the modern shoe. And by all means it has to be beautiful. People can't reconcile themselves to the truth that for most feet it is impossible to get a shoe that will be both comfortable and handsome. So they have to reconcile themselves to corns and bunions and broken arches.

Another cause of ill foot health is the shoe clerk who hasn't an exact fit in stock for some Milquetoast, and persuades him that what he has will do. It is one of the fundamental policies of this department that the most important articles of wearing apparel you buy are your shoes.

Bill to License Drivers Beaten

COLUMBUS, March 7 — The Handley senate bill to license Ohio automobile drivers today went the route of all similar legislation proposed in the legislature regularly for the last five or six sessions. Passed by the senate, it was defeated overwhelmingly in the lower house.

Democrats and Republicans alike attacked the proposal as of no consequence other than providing more jobs at the expense of the farmer and worker.

Its sponsor in the House, Rep. Lawrence Kane (R) Cincinnati, assured his colleagues drivers' license legislation would reduce motor car accidents 20 per cent, but this assertion was questioned by Rep. Robert F. Kaser (D) Sidney, who led the opposition.

"I cannot see where this bill would save a single life," said Kaser, "Rural Ohio drives safely and sanely and does not need this law. If Cleveland and Cincinnati feel the need for it, it should be made to apply especially to them."

Burden on Most

Rep. Grant Ward (R) Columbus, pictured the Handley bill, which would have fixed the license fee at 60 cents as amended before its final defeat, as "a burden on the 95 per cent who drive carefully."

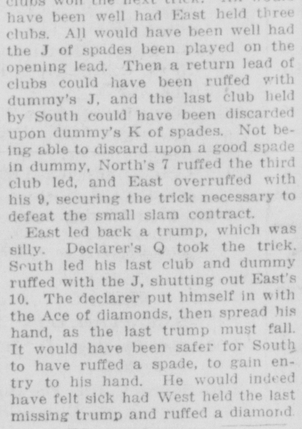
Contract Bridge

By E. V. SHEPARD

BAD PLAY COSTS A SMALL SLAM

THE BLIND opening lead is a critical step for the defenders. What the declarer does with that lead often decides the fate of his contract, as it did in the case of the deal shown below.



Neither side was vulnerable when South dealt. Bidding went: South, 2-Hearts; North, 2-Spades, to show his barely biddable suit and single quick trick; South, 3-Clubs; North, 3-No Trumps; South, 5-Hearts; North, 6-Hearts, without knowing why he did it.

Not wanting to lead up to declarer's clubs, West led his fourth-best spade, through the weak suit bid by dummy. The "rule-of-eleven" (11 minus 4 equals 7) showed seven higher cards out than the four led by West. The declarer held one of these. Dummy held four higher cards. Therefore East must hold two higher spades than that led by his partner. The higher spades missing were the Ace, Q, 10, 6 and 5. If East held the A-Q it could make no difference which honor was played from dummy. It was too dangerous to play the 8. South should play either the K or J. It would be dangerous and unusual for West to lead blindly away from the Ace of spades. Probably East held the missing Ace. The J was the proper card to play from dummy, but the K was played, just because the declarer held a singleton. Of course the Ace won.

East led back his 10 of diamonds. West played his J. Dummy's K won. A club was led back. The Q finesse held the trick. The Ace of clubs won the next trick. All would have been well had East held three clubs. All would have been well had the J of spades been played on the opening lead. Then a return lead of clubs could have been ruffed with dummy's J, and the last club held by South could have been discarded upon dummy's K of spades. Not being able to discard upon a good spade in dummy, North's 7 ruffed the third club led, and East overruffed with his 9, securing the trick necessary to defeat the small slam contract.

East led back a trump, which was silly. Declarer's Q took the trick. South led his last club and dummy ruffed with the J, shutting out East's 10. The declarer put himself in with the Ace of diamonds, then spread his hand, as the last trump must fall. It would have been safer for South to have ruffed a spade, to gain entry to his hand. He would indeed have felt sick had West held the last missing trump and ruffed a diamond.

SPORTSMEN OF OHIO GATHER; DAVEY SPEAKS

Task of Naming New Conservation Officer Faced by Executive

COLUMBUS, March 7—Sportsmen from every section of Ohio are expected to converge on the state capital enmasse tonight to press their campaigns for sectional candidates for the $5,000-a-year job of state conservation commissioner.

The conference, an annual joint meeting of the Ohio Conservation council and the Ohio League of Sportsmen, has taken on added importance this year, since Governor Martin L. Davey has promised sportsmen's group officials he will take two major steps to aid the cause of outdoorsmen during the conference.

He will sign the bill of Rep. J. H. McCregor (R) of Coshocton-co, which will restrict the use of sportsmen's funds to use by the conservation division only. The measure has been passed by both house and senate. No money may be diverted from the sportsmen's funds, under the measure, except by express consent of the council.

Discuss Candidates

While Davey has given sportsmen no assurance that he will announce his selection of a state conservation commissioner to fill the post of W. H. Reinhart of Sandusky, present chief of the division, during the session, he has promised to meet with executives of the various sportsmen's bodies to discuss the 15 or 20 applicants for the job.

It will be no easy task for him to please Ohio sportsmen with his selection of a conservation commissioner. For nearly every organization of fishermen, hunters, dog fanciers and other related groups has at least one candidate from the ranks.

While observers have predicted that Reinhart will undoubtedly be replaced, there are a great many sportsmen, friends of the present chief, who are planning to be on hand when the governor opens the way for his supporters to "turn on the pressure."

Former officials of the League of Ohio Sportsmen, the state Izaak Walton leagues and even some men in present official capacity are among those said to be under consideration for the appointment.

Talk at Banquet

Gov. Davey will speak at a banquet this evening and President Henry Pfeiffer of Kenton has planned to name a joint committee following his address, of state senators, representatives and sportsmen, to study proposed legislation affecting the conservation division.

Their drive for a ban against diversion of sportsmen's funds to other departments apparently successful, officials of the group today planned to push their drive for more flexible powers for the division, to take from the legislature the authority of changing open season, game limits and penalties.

WHITLINGER TO LEAD BUCKEYES

COLUMBUS, March 7—Warren Whitlinger, star forward on Ohio State university's basketball team, today had been elected to captain the Bucks in the 1935-36 cage season by his teammates.

The Zanesville youth was the high point man for the squad this year and the third leading scorer in the Big Ten. He was chosen after the university awarded eight varsity "O" letters to members of the team.

COLUMBIA IN TIE

NEW YORK, Mar. 7—Columbia university was in a tie with Pennsylvania for the eastern intercollegiate basketball league leadership today by virtue of a 52 to 29 walloping of Harvard last night. It was their second victory over the Crimson this year, and the scoring set a season's record for the circuit.

Tough Luck Bill

Bill McKechnie, manager of the Boston Braves where Babe Ruth will hang out this season, is one of the tough luck boys of the big pastime—Though he has been repeatedly successful no good has ever come from his effort.

As a ball player, McKechnie was a fair shortstop and third baseman. As a manager he has been great, but the rewards have been disillusioning.

He went lame as a third baseman 15 years ago. He was named manager of the Pirates in 1922. Under him the club finished third three times in a row. Then in 1925 the Pirates crashed through and beat Washington in a seven-game world series. The team finished third again in 1926 and Bill was eased out in favor of Donie Bush.

McKechnie popped up in 1928 as manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, and won a pennant his first year there. The Yankees, with Ruth rampant, took four straight games from the Redbirds in the world series. Those wallops of Babe's helped to sow the seed of doubt about McKechnie's wizardry in the Cardinal front office. In mid-season of 1929 Bill was hustled off to Rochester to manage the Cardinal farm team, trading places with Billy Southworth. He won a pennant in 1929 at Rochester, too.

After Judge Emil Fuchs took a brief but disastrous whirl at managing the tail-end Braves in 1929, McKechnie was brought to the rescue in the following year.

Improves Team

He has improved the Braves steadily since then, without having much money to work with. It seemed he had a home won for himself at last on the Boston bench. Judge Fuchs liked him and he was popular in Beantown.

Now—along comes Ruth, ostensibly to share the management of the team (and of Babe Ruth) with McKechnie.

Bill couldn't be blamed if he got up on a soapbox somewhere and told the world that the only numbers on the dice are two, three and twelve.

Oh, Yeah?

Michigan Favored to Win Big Ten Indoor Meet; Owens Entered

CHICAGO, March 7—Headed by a sensational 60-yard dash field, the track events in the annual Big Ten indoor championships at the University of Chicago fieldhouse Saturday promise to provide one thrill after another.

The graduation of such aces as Charles Hornbostel, who won both the 880 and the mile and Ivan Fuqua, creator of a new 440 record in last year's meet, should make for closer races in those events this year, so clearly did the two Hoosier stars dominate their field.

Michigans' track team, conceded a chance to win nearly every event, is the outstanding favorite to take first in this twenty-first annual event.

In the lone sprint on the program, Willis Ward of Michigan will defend the title against such sophomore topnotchers as Jimmy Owen of Iowa; Jesse Owens, Ohio State's sensational negro who recently won the Millrose dash and finished second in the national championships, and Sam Stoller of Michigan, who has twice defeated Ward this season.

BAER TO WATCH NEGRO CONTENDER

SAN FRANCISCO, March 7—Max Baer, heavyweight champion and his manager Ancil Hoffman, will be in ringside heats tomorrow night when Joe Louis, Detroit's sensational negro heavyweight, meets Donald ("Red") Barry, Washington, D. C., in a ten-round bout.

Baer intends to get a first hand slant at Louis, the lad mentioned as a possible challenger for the heavyweight crown.

Way Out

The Senate Post Office Committee has been offered an interesting suggestion for a way out of its dilemma on what to do about Huey Long's resolution to investigate Jim Farley.

The Committee has been worriedly sitting on the lid of the resolution for some weeks—definitely opposed to it yet afraid to veto it for fear Huey will capitalize the idea that the Administration dared not expose the Postmaster General to a public airing.

The proposed solution is risky but bold.

The committee would agree to undertake the probe. But with an added provision—that it also be authorized to investigate Huey.

Committee members to whom the idea was broached agreed that it was ingenious. But they were dubious of the practicability of investigating Huey.

It was a job they would like very much to see done, but none wanted to tackle it.

As one member put it: "Sure, we'd all like to see the cat belled. But no one wants to do the belling."

Possible

A significant change has taken place behind the scenes on Capitol Hill regarding legislation for fixing the work-week.

When the 30-hour measure was revived early in the session, floor leaders brushed it aside as not having a chance.

Privately, they are talking differently now.

They say there is strong possibility that a work-week limiting bill may be enacted. They express doubt that it will be a rigid 30-hour measure, more likely a compromise at a higher figure, permitting certain exceptions.

The fact that Congressional leaders are voicing these views has greatly alarmed industrial moguls.

Reason for the changed Congressional situation is the Administration's abandonment of all pretence that the NRA can do anything about reducing unemployment rolls. Also there is growing pressure by organized labor for enactment of a statutory work-week.

Few recall the fact that the Senate passed a 30-hour bill in the 1933 special session.

And it was this action which prompted the President, who was against the measure, to take up the Baruch-Johnson suggestion of a National Industrial Administration.

COUNCIL DISCUSSES AGE LIMIT; MUCH OTHER BUSINESS

MARION ASKS HOW MUCH IS DUE HOSPITAL IN FEBRUARY

Council attacked the much-disputed age limitation ordinance for control of the police and fire departments from a different angle Wednesday evening but the result was not passage o the ordinance but a motion to turn it over to Solicitor Carl Leist for revision.

Councilman W. H. Reid, chairman of the ordinance committee, said he believed the revision would result in the ordinance's passage at the next meeting March 20.

Reid reported the ordinance out for a vote amending its age limit to be 24 and 35 except for ex-service men when it would be 24 and 40. His motion to vote on the ordinance worked in that manner resulted in a second but during discussion Councilman Frank Marion said he believed the chief's job should be available to any man 40 years old whether or not he is an ex-service man.

This move resulted in some discussion with the final result that the ordinance was placed in Leist's hands.

Trustees of the fireman's pension board, through Secretary Robert Wolfe, proposed the ordinance to read a 24-35 for laymen and 24-40 for ex-service men.

"How Much is Due?"
Marion Inquires

When Safety Director L. T. Shaner reported to council that receipts at the hospital amounted to $628 in February, Councilman Marion asked if he knew how much business was done during the month and how much money is still outstanding. He said: "We hear reports of the revenue but we don't know anything about how much was not collected."

Shaner promised to have these figures in the report of the March business.

A request that seven or eight rooms be painted at the hospital was made by Mr. Shaner. He reported installation of guard rails in front of the hospital.

Finances Listed
As of March 6

The city's finances as of March 6 were reported by Councilmen Ben Gordon.

The treasury holds the following funds:

General, $934.19.
Library, $1,832.02.
Marcus Brown, $896.72.
Auto license, $3,307.81.
Gas tax, $1,286.09.
Berger hospital, $21.53.
Total, $8,278.36.

McCrady Confirmed
As Chief of Police

Council voted unanimously to approve William F. McCrady as chief of the police department succeeding W. F. Warner who served for 19 years.

Mayor Cady informed council that the civil service commission's eligible list expires March 9 which means that in case of accident or any other difficulty there would be no one available for police or fire departments.

Money for Smith
Ditch Withdrawn

Delay caused by failure to reach an agreement with the owners of land south of the city permitting the city to cross the property with an improvement of the Smith ditch has resulted in the commissioners withdrawing the $4,000 grant.

It is possible the money will be available later.

Leist to Request
Action From PUC

Solicitor Carl Leist told council that he had visited the utilities commission in regard to obtaining a complete valuation of the Ohio Water Service Co. properties here and had been told that the commission's force was so depleted that such a survey would be impossible at this time.

He was told, however, to write a letter asking information and that all details now held by the commission would be put together in a report.

The report is sought with the city considering purchase of the water works.

Bill for Operation
Is Sent to Council

A bill sent to the city by W. H. Taylor, safety director of Wilmington, for services and hospital expense totalling $76.50 for an emergency operation of John W. Kuhen was placed in the hands of the committee on laws and claims, Dan Ryan chairman.

Kuhen, the letter says, was stricken while in Wilmington and it was necessary to remove his appendix. He was a resident of Circleville, the safety director contended, thus the city should pay the bill. Dr. Kelley Hale was the operating surgeon.

Cady's Collections
In February Noted

Mayor Cady collected $18.35 in fines, $1 in licenses, $8.70 in fees and $18.70 in bonds, a total of $46.75 during February, council was informed.

Questions and Answers

Should honey be stored in a refrigerator? Will it deteriorate if it is left out of the refrigerator?

Honey keeps best, tastes best and pours best if kept where it is dry and warm. Too low a temperature causes it to become too thick and slow pouring. Honey may crystallize but it will not spoil if it is kept at room temperature.

What is wild rice? How should it be cooked?

Wild rice is a native American rice grown in Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota and is best known as feed for wild game. It can be cooked very much like the more familiar rice, by boiling or steaming. The rice grains are elongated in shape, greenish in color compared to other rice.

Is tapioca healthful for children?

Tapioca is a good energy food in itself and is recommended for children because it combines readily with dietary necessities such as eggs, milk and fruit. Tapioca supplies starch and care should be exercised to prevent overcooking. Too long cooking may result in an unpleasant, gummy texture that is not at all desirable.

How long should fish be cooked? Is there a rule to guide me in timing the cooking?

The minutes required for cooking fish would vary with the method of cooking to be employed. Here is a description of the appearance of fish tissue when done, which may help you. When fish has been cooked sufficiently the flesh will fall easily from the bone, will be an opaque white in color, and should be tender and juicy. Overcooking will dry out the fish and render it unpalatable.

What kind of sauce is best for fish?

There is a great variety of sauces that enhance the flavors of fish. Tartar sauce is probably the best known accompaniment for fish dishes. Make it by adding 1 teaspoon onion juice, 1 tablespoon finely minced sweet pickle, 1 teaspoon minced capers, and 1 teaspoon minced olives to 1 cup of tart mayonnaise. This sauce is especially good for deep fat fried fish or for croquettes.

Lemon Butter Sauce is made of ½ cup butter melted, to which is added 2 tablespoons of lemon juice, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley and a dash of paprika.

Mustard Cream Gravy is especially good with mackerel. Mix 2 tablespoons flour and 4 teaspoons of dry mustard, and make a cream sauce by adding ⅔ cup butter and 1½ cups boiling water. When thick, add 2 teaspoons of Worcestershire sauce. Just before serving, add 3 tablespoons vinegar.

For Baked or Boiled Fish

Spanish sauce is very delicious with baked or boiled fish. It includes:

¼ C. chopped stuffed olives
⅓ C. chopped onion
¼ C. chopped green pepper
¼ C. olive oil
3 tsp. flour
1 C. fish stock
1 tsp. tarragon vinegar
4 tsp. lemon juice
Salt to taste
Paprika

Fry olives, onions and green peppers in oil until onions are browned slightly. Add flour, stirring to mix well. Then add fish stock and cook, stirring constantly until thick and smooth. Add vinegar and lemon juice, and salt if needed. Pour over fish and dust with paprika.

HEARSE CARRYING CORPSE IS STOLEN

NEW YORK, March 7—There are limits even to a crime wave.

But the fellow who stole a hearse with a corpse in it in downtown Manhattan early today apparently doesn't know about them.

Joseph Goodcoff, Brooklyn undertaker, drove to New Brunswick, N. J., for the body of Mrs. Jennie Weintraub.

He returned this morning and decided he'd stop in a restaurant for a cup of coffee. He left the hearse parked outside.

Ten minutes later he emerged in time to see the hearse disappearing over the Manhatan bridge toward Brooklyn

Police sounded a city-wide alarm.

The hearse later was found abandoned in Brooklyn, its silent occupant unmolested.

SENATE READY TO VOTE NEW RELIEF LAWS

Ohio a legal relief organization which it has been without since the old law expired on Feb. 28.

Sen. Frank Whittemore (R) Akron, the minority floor leader, withdrew his motion to reconsider the vote by which the Anderson relief commission extender bill was defeated last week when the 13 Republicans refused to vote for the emergency clause.

He did this to permit the Democratic floor leader, Sen. Paul Yoder (D) Dayton, to have the bill recommitted to a senate committee where it will be re-drafted and resubmitted.

Whittemore said it was doubtful whether the bill in its new form would contain a clause putting relief workers under civil service, the issue which caused the previous deadlock between the governor and the Republican senators

No Need for Clause

Since the federal relief administration is satisfied with the present Ohio relief personnel and appears determined to prevent a wholesale house-cleaning of employes by the governor or his subordinates, Whittemore said there was no urgent need for a civil service clause.

To Avoid Magnetism

Faraday demonstrated back in 1845 that all substances, even the gases, are either attracted or repelled by a sufficiently powerful magnetic pole. For practical purposes, however, glass, indurated fiber, often called "red fiber," or vulcanized rubber are substances through which the magnetic pull has no effect.

Secretary of Labor Perkins Unhappy Over Rebuffs by President

WASHINGTON—One of the most significant behind-the-scenes developments in inner White House circles is the way the President has quietly but definitely shelved pro-labor-minded Secretary Frances Perkins as one of his counsellors.

Until recently she was always consulted on policies affecting labor. But on three consecutive occasions Roosevelt either has not sought her views or rejected them when given.

Miss Perkins opposed renewal of the auto code unless it was revised to give labor a better break. But the President turned the entire question over to Don Richberg.

On the day the code was renewed Miss Perkins tried repeatedly to get in touch with the "Assistant President", and although only a few blocks separated them she was unable to reach him.

She did not know the code had been extended until informed late that night by newsmen she met at a White House reception.

A week later when the President sent the cigarette code to [illegible] for an expression of opinion she recommended certain pro-labor changes. The code was signed by Roosevelt without change.

Miss Perkins has sided with the Senate Liberals on the prevailing wage issue. But the President has not once consulted her about one matter.

And now she has received another rebuff.

For several months Miss Perkins has been pressing the A. F. of L.'s demand on Roosevelt that labor be given another member on the NRA board. The retirement of Dr. Harry A. Millis from the National Labor Relations Board seemed to open the way for such a change.

Miss Perkins proposed that he be replaced by Professor Walton H. Hamilton who is now in the NRA Board and that a laborite be appointed to the NRA in Hamilton's place.

The President appeared sold on the plan.

But at this point, "Assistant President" Richberg stepped in.

He vigorously opposed any change in the NRA board lineup. He had devised the board, he declared, and to add another labor member would "throw it out of balance."

So Miss Perkins' plan went glimmering.

But to insiders there are signs that she is far from happy.

The People's Voice

North Carolina's engaging Bob Reynolds was one Senator who really got emphatic reverberations from his home-folks for opposing the President in the work-relief wage controversy.

Bob voted for the McCarran prevailing wage amendment. When this momentous word reached Beaufort County, N. C. a trial was in progress in the Superior Court.

This fact, however, did not disturb one of the attorneys, H. S. Ward, a former member of Congress who was known in the House as "Hot-Stuff."

Ward interrupted the trial as follows:

"If Your Honor please, I have a matter which I think is more important than this case. I have just received word that Bob Reynolds voted against the President and I think we ought to recess this case so the Bar Association can meet and discuss the matter."

"I think that is a good idea, Mr. Ward," replied the judge. "The Court will take a recess for an hour."

Whereupon the Beaufort County Bar Association convened in solemn conclave, and after debating Senator Reynold's action, adopted a resolution that his vote in favor of the McCarran amendment "was not representative of

DAVEY AGAIN TALKS

Again Asks FERA to Take Over Relief

COLUMBUS, March 7— Undaunted by the previous flat refusal of the federal government to relieve Ohio of the burden of administering relief, Governor Davey today once more urged Federal Relief Administrator Hopkins to "place responsibility for the present relief set-up in Ohio squarely where it belongs—with the federal government."

At the same time the governor renewed his request that "a thorough investigation of the administration of relief in Ohio should be made, and the extravagances and abuses eliminated."

But since in his opinion "such action appears to be unattainable," he made the second request that that the state be relieved of all responsibility for the present relief organization.

Do Not Solve Issue

"Unfortunately, Mr. Hopkins' intemperate and abusive remarks concerning me personally will not help solve the relief problem in Ohio," said Davey.

Meanwhile, the state senate pointed the way toward enactment of a new relief law which will give

He said he had not yet answered the governor's first letter, received Tuesday, in which the governor criticised the present relief set-up in his state.

Federal Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins has bluntly refused to take over Ohio's relief problem. In a bristling letter to Gov. Martin L. MANY PAYING YEAR'S TAXES TO TREASURER

Numerous Delinquent Taxes Being Paid, Hoffman Discloses

OHIO SURVEY MADE

Stream of County Tax Payers is Steady

The depleted coffers of the Pickaway-co treasurer were being replenished rapidly today with Treasurer Earl Hoffman reporting collections the best since he assumed office several years ago.

No figures are yet available but Mr. Honman said Thursday that taxpayers have been steadily coming to the various windows in his office since it was announced the real estate books were open.

"Not only are they paying taxes in such a fine manner," the treasurer said, "but many Circleville and Pickaway-co property owners are paying back taxes and many more are paying their taxes for the entire year at this time.

Pay Full Year

"Instead of asking their taxes for the half-year," Mr. Hoffman stated "many are inquiring concerning the entire year and paying them.

A press association recently surveyed the state to learn how well taxes have been collected in some of the metropolitan centers.

Franklin-co for the first time in five years reports a decrease in the accumulation of delinquent real estate taxes.

In Cuyahoga-co accumulated delinquencies on the 1934 duplicate were only 10 per cent while in 1933 they were 40 per cent and in 1932 65 per cent.

The Cuyahoga-co treasurer attributed the improvement to better economic conditions, home owners loan corporation aid and partial payment of taxes under the Whittemore act.

MacCracken completed a ten days' sentence in the district jail for contempt of the senate. During his incarceration he did clerical work.

Limburger Now Fit For Mail, Determine

WASHINGTON, March 7— The post office department has "okayed" limburger cheese in Uncle Sam's mail.

Until recently the department had a ruling barring the cheese because its peculiar aroma injured other mail stuffs. the postmaster at Monroe, Wisconsin, demonstrated to the second assistant postmaster general that the pungent ordor characteristic of limburger can be confined if the cheese is wrapped in tinfoil and heavy waxed paper. So the department relaxed its old regulation.

9 KILLED IN UTAH BLAST

Bodies Blown to Pieces as Nitroglycerine Explodes at Oil Well

ST. GEORGE, Utah, March 7— An inquest was ordered today into the deaths of at least nine persons who were blown to pieces, burned to death or struck down by falling timbers when 2,800 pounds of nitroglycerin exploded at the Arrowhead Oil company's new well, five miles south of here.

Bodies of five were recovered during the night. At least four other persons are known to have been killed.

County Attorney Orval Hafen, who went to the scene of the disaster last night and took charge of the investigation, said that many charred bits of human flesh and bone were scatered about and identification of some bodies would be impossible. He will continue the search for bodies at daylight.

Hafen said there was a possibility that several others may have been killed. Miss Rosemond Snow, daughter of Mrs. Joseph Snow, incurred serious injuries.

Workmen were attempting to lower 800 pounds of nitroglycerin into the well, Hafen said, to blast an obstacle the drillers had encountered. A number of friends, about 25 persons in all, had gathered at the well to witness the spectacular explosion.

As the nitroglycerin was being placed in the hole, it apparently rubbed against something, causing friction which set it off.

A ton of nitroglycerin in a storehouse a few feet from the well also exploded. Both the well derrick and storehouse were blown to bits.

MOTHER DEFENDS HUSBAND'S KILLER

STEUBENVILLE, March 7— Mrs. Charlies W. Loy today branded her slain husband and the father of her 13 children as "a brute" as she rushed to the defense of her 17-year-old daughter, Ethelender, who shot and killed him yesterday.

The girl has been released under $1,000 bond.

In defending the girl's action, Mrs. Loy stated:

"No one knows what I have suffered. He was brutal and fought with me all the time. The poor girl did what she thought was right. Now her life is ruined. My boys know what it has been like. They often wanted to take my part."

Ethelender told police she shot her father after he had attempted to attack Mrs. Loy with a butcher knife. The shooting occurred in the Loy houseboat tied up near the Steubenville wharf.

HOLLYWOOD, Mar. 7 — Anita Page, blonde film actress, today sought annulment of her marriage to Nacio Herb Brown, song writer, on the ground Brown's divorce from his first wife, Jeanne Borlini, will not become final until June 5.

Brown said she had not discussed the matter with him, but added "I'm willing to do whatever will pleast Anita."

CAN HUEY BEAT SENATE LEADERS?

Senator Robinson | Senator Long | Senator Harrison

Threats of Senator Huey Long of Louisiana to defeat for re-election Senator Joseph T. Robinson, left, of Arkansas, majority leader, and Senator Pat Harrison, right, of Mississippi, next in rank, may cause a strong anti-Long lineup. The Roosevelt administration is expected to put all it influence behind the two be-leaguered senators, who must stand for renomination (tantamount to election in the south) a year hence. Senator Long's term also expires at the same time. He has said he may run for the governorship of Louisiana instead—as Baton Rouge serves as a better focal point than Washington for "extending his dictatorial powers" into other southern states bordering on Louisiana.

TURKS CROWD GREEK BORDER

Fear Civil War May Result in Trouble; Report Veniseloz Fleeing

By International News Service

Fear of international complications from the Greek civil war was heightened today by renewed reports of heavy Turkish troop concentration on the border.

Rebel forces around the Greek armored cruiser Averoff cowed Mytilene, capital of the ancient island of Lesbos off the Turkish coast and claimed it in the name of the revolution.

Sub-zero temperatures in Macedonia delayed the long-expected decisive clash between the rival Greek factions but sporadic encounters occurred, with reports of butchery and brutal fighting by both sides reaching Bulgarian towns.

Bulgaria rushed additional troops to her border, augmenting her garrisons to virtual war strength. A report reached London that former Premier Venizelos of Greece reputed "master mind" of the insurrection, had fled Crete for Alexandria, was unconfirmed.

General Nicholas Plastiras, exiled Greek revolutionary and a mystery figure in the present crisis, arrived at Venice, reportedly bound for Piraeus, Greece.

PIPELINE FIRM TO BEGIN TASK NEAR APRIL 10

Cady Receives Letter From Phipps Following Gordon's Wire

OBSTACLES CITED

Contracts Let for Lines, Phipps Claims

The Universal Pipeline Co., under contract with the city to build a line to this city to furnish gas, will start laying its pipe about April 10, W. H. Phipps, of 1748 Bryden-rd, Columbus, president of the organization, informed council Wednesday evening through a communication to Mayor W. E. Cady.

An ordinance giving the pipeline company permission to lay pipes to the city gates was granted by council quite a while ago but no action has been taken by the Universal. Councilman Ben H. Gordon wired Phipps this week asking him the company's plans and received an immediate answer: "Yes we will build the pipeline and supply Circleville with gas." The wire was signed by Phipps.

Writes to Mayor

In Wednesday's mail, Mayor Cady received the following letter from Phipps:

"We have inquiry from Ben Gordon, member of council, if we intend to build and pipeline and supply you with gas. We have let the contract for the entire line to Circleville with a spur to Jackson and we have contracted for drilling 12 wells on leases in Jackson and vicinity.

"We have also purchased gas in Kentucky in two contracts of 50,000,000 feet each daily production and are now arranging for outright purchase of 50,000 acres of gas production territory.

"We have had many things to do and we have been disappointed in some matters. We had our lines fully financed but pressure was brought to get the party to withdraw and he did so. As a result after much effort Mr. Gardner and I went to New York Feb. 9 and arranged financing that can not be scared off so that is out of the way.

"A firm with which we have a contract for delivery of pipeline supplies was threatened if they furnished us such supplies the other party making the threat would not buy any more pipe from that firm.

"I am reciting these matters to show you the obstacles we have had to overcome.

"We expect to be laying our pipes by April 10 and will proceed as rapidly as possible to your city."

Several other cities including Portsmouth, Chillicothe and Jackson have granted the pipeline company contracts to bring fuel to the city gates.

No Gas Ordinance

Although the gas company presented an ordinance to Chillicothe council last Monday calling for a slightly higher rate no such offer was heard at the local meeting Wednesday evening. Usually the gas company appears in Chillicothe council meeting on Monday evening then comes here Wednesday of the same week. The offer, which has been forecast by E. M. Tharp, general manager of the Ohio Fuel in this district, will be made within a short time, it is almost certain.

RIOTING AGAIN STRIKES CUBA; ARMY CALLED

University, Customs Offices Controlled; Teachers Ordered to Return

HAVANA, March 7—Troops today occupied Havana university, took over internal tax and customs offices and imposed a rigorous newspaper censorship as the government's hand finally fell heavily on the revolutionary strike movement.

The cabinet of President Carlos Mendieta, prodded by the powerful Col. Fulgencio Baptista, issued an ultimatum to 20,000 teachers striking throughout the nation, ordering them to return Monday or lose their jobs. Government employees who joined the strike today were dismissed.

This drastic action came in the early morning hours after a day of terror in which one person was killed and more than ten wounded as students tried to induce government workers to participate in the walkout aimed to force President Mendieta's resignation.

Occupation of the university was staged without bloodshed, when a battalion of soldiers ejected a hundred professors who had been holding an all-night meeting and scores of loitering students.

Cabinet members charged that the university, which had enjoyed autonomy for years until today, was now a center for illicit plotting against the government, and a depository for explosives.

All the city was tense, with heavily armed soldiers and sailors stopping all autos, street cars, and pedestrians, searching for weapons and explosives, to prevent a recurrence of yesterday's bombing and shootings.

Police ordered all newspapers, with the exception of one English language publication, to submit copies to the department of the interior before they could be circulated.

Hundreds of tourists faced dificulties with the military-controlled customs, with five ships, including the cruise ship Columbia, due in port today.

A group of armed men invaded the quarters of the anti-government radio station CMX during the night, and smashed equipment valued at $12,000.

What Should the Budget Be?

Every family is a rule unto itself, and no budget schedule can be applicable to all cases.

For a family with an income of $2,000, the most useful generalization is: savings, 10 per cent; food, 25 per cent; rent, 20 per cent; operating costs, 15 per cent; clothing, 15 per cent; and development, 15 per cent.

Statistics show, however, that more than half the families of the United States have an income of about $1,000. A family of this type attempting to set up a budget on the same percentages as for $2,000 incomes might find itself with a savings account but undernourished bodies.

The lower the income, the higher is the percentage which must be spent for food. Necessities, such as food, shelter, and some of the operating and clothing costs must be met first, at the expense of the savings account.

After a budget is planned, considering the resources and needs of the family, the next step is to try to live by that plan. This requires every bit as much cooperation and understanding on the part of the family members as it did to make the budget. All the time and effort put into the plan is lost unless the family tries to live by it.

Some type of records or accounts is necessary, and there are many household account books, good and bad, on the market. The Ohio State University home economics extension service has an account book available at a small cost. The actual keeping of records does take some time, but if, by avoiding leaks, it means a saving of money, then the time is well spent.

Simplicity is to be desired in the household account book, with headings not too complicated.

There are, of course, many debatable items, as: where shall the ice bill be recorded, under food or operating costs? The plan there is not to worry about it, but place it one place or the other, always being consistent.

The record book should be kept in a convenient place—a drawer in a table in the dining room, or in a desk—if the home-maker is fortunate enough to have one.

A BUILDER AND TONIC

THERE'S no better builder and tonic than Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, for it tones up the stomach and the blood. Mrs. Vera Halstead of 3502 Flemming Road, Flint, Mich., said: "My face broke out with disagreeable pimples. One bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cleared up my blood and the pimples disappeared. Later when I became all rundown and felt tired, I took a bottle of the 'Discovery' and it soon had me feeling better and stronger, and I have since enjoyed good health. I believe the 'Discovery' is the best tonic to obtain quick results."

FARMERS DENIED AAA OPPORTUNITY

ATHENS, March 7 Farmers of this county will not be able to participate under the federal corn-hog reduction program since the county commissioners have failed to appropriate $2,000 for extension work in the county. Last year farmers received $32,000 as a result of the program.

SALES TAX RULINGS

The sales tax section of the State Tax Commission has issued a number of rulings affecting various lines of business. Those of interest to Pickaway-co residents will be published in this column at intervals.

SALES OF MEDICINE

Sales of medicine or compounds on prescriptions when such sales are made by pharmacists or druggists are subject to the tax imposed by Amended House Bill No. 134. The tax is to be computed on the entire selling price of the article so sold and no deduction may be made for the professional services which enter into the making of the finished article.

SALES OF EYE GLASSES

An optician, oculist, or optometrist engaged in selling glasses in connection with his services is a vendor within the meaning of Amended House Bill No. 134 and as such must procure a vendor's license and collect the tax on all sales.

The tax basis will be the selling price of the eye glasses without any deduction being made from that price as a charge for the services which enter into the making of the finished product.

In the event charges for professional services or examinations which are rendered apart from the making of said eye glasses are itemized separately, the tax will not be computed thereon.

PHYSICIANS

A physician for the purpose of Amended House Bill No. 134 is the consumer of the various articles which he uses in connection with the rendition of his professional services. In all cases where the physician is actively engaged in dispensing medicinal supplies or selling articles of tangible personal property not directly in connection with his examination or professional service, he is a vendor within the meaning of the act, must procure a vendor's license, and collect the tax on all sales in the manner prescribed by Section 3 of the act.

GOOD NEWS

INDUSTRIAL development in the territory served by the Norfolk and Western Railway continued its steady advance during 1934.

Last year, 168 new industries and additions to existing plants, involving an investment of $17,806,200 and employing 13,329 persons, were established along the railroad's lines. But that isn't all. This march of progress was not halted during the depression. Here is the record:

Year	New Industries Established	Investment In New Industries	Number Employees In New Industries
1931	145	$ 7,275,000	5,315
1932	180	14,542,190	7,215
1933	152	19,008,607	8,131
1934	168	17,806,200	13,329

The Norfolk and Western traverses a territory richly endowed by nature, and one that offers to industry an unusual combination of advantages so essential to economic production and distribution. The development in this great territory, extending westward from the world-famous Port of Norfolk, on the Atlantic Coast, through the heart of Virginia (and into the Carolinas and Maryland), through the vast coal fields of West Virginia, and thence into the Ohio River Valley to the Middle West at Cincinnati and Columbus, Ohio, is a matter of vital interest to the railway. This interest has been translated into definite action.

The railroad maintains at Roanoke, Va., an efficient and well organized Industrial and Agricultural Department, staffed by experts who devote their entire time and energies to the continued growth of the territory. Their services and advice are always available to industries seeking new locations and to industries located on the railway.

The consistent industrial development along its lines is a source of much gratification to the Norfolk and Western. The railway is justly proud of the part it has played in this fine achievement.

WAREHOUSE SALE TO OPEN FRIDAY

Cussins & Fearn announce in a large ad in today's paper a gigantic two-day Warehouse Clearance Sale starting Friday morning and continuing through Saturday. This sale is being conducted at their Circleville store only, 122 N. Court-st.

This Warehouse Clearance Sale is the result of combining end of season stocks from several stores, new, specially selected values from the recent Chicago Housewares Exposition, and after inventory clean-up of surplus stocks in their big Columbus Warehouse. Selected merchandise—all new—has been assembled in one great group and is being sent to Circleville to be quickly closed out at remarkably low prices during this two-day sale.

In considering the 18 cities in which Cussins & Fearn has stores, Circleville was selected as one of the best to conduct this sale, because of the response Circleville people have given to Cussins & Fearn in the past. Huge crowds are expected by Mr. McCord, manager of the Circleville store—great preparations have been made to handle them. People are expected to attend from 40 to 50 miles around. Extra sales people, extra wrappers, and extra space has been taken for sale merchandise. At Delaware where a similar sale was held a short time ago, crowds awaited the opening of the doors on Friday to obtain choice selection Friday to obtain choice selections of the opening hour values and then thronged the store for the entire two days. Similar crowds are expected to attend the Circleville Sale.

MOTOR TRAGEDY

MADRID—Juan Espinosa, 16, jumped on the running board of an automobile which had just bowled over his sister Maria at La Linea and murdered Jose Vieto, whom he took to be the chauffeur. The boy drove his knife through Vieto's neck, failing to notice in his excitement that Vieto was a passenger and not the chauffeur. Maria, the cause of the drama, was only bruised slighty.

COLLEGE SPEAKER

DR. ROBERT L. CALHOUN

Local ministers and laymen have been invited by Ohio Wesleyan university officials to attend the annual Merrick Lectures which will begin Sunday night, March 10, in Gray chapel at Delaware.

The lectures this year will be delivered by Dr. Robert I. Calhoun, professor of historic theology at the Yale Divinity School, New Haven, Conn. They will be given five successive nights, ending Thursday night, March 14.

"The Present Force of Platonic Thought" is the general subject of Dr. Calhoun's lectures. The five specific subjects will be "Problems of a Post-War Culture," "Platonic 'Ideas' and the Natural Sciences," "A Philosophy of Social Planning," "Inner Balance as Basic in the Good Life" and "The Transcendent Good and the Living God."

The Merrick lectures are given annually by some outstanding religious leader and are based on experimental and practical religion. They are named after the Rev. Frederick Merrick, who gave 51 years of his life to the service of the university, 13 of them as president.

Tell Dramas Resumed

GENEVA—Altdorf, the unspoilt home-town of Switzerland's national hero, is making preparations to present Schiller's drama "William Tell" on Sunday afternoons, from the middle of July up to and including Sept. 8.

After an interval of four years these performances were given again last year in the modern Tell Playhouse. Some 200 native actors lend their talents.

WE HAVE INTERVIEWED GROCERS ABOUT Good Tea

And this is what we have learned—

Grocers will tell you that good Black teas enjoy the overwhelming preference of tea drinkers. In fact, their figures prove that three of each four cups of tea consumed in America contain good Black tea. This, say grocers, is proof aplenty that teas of the Black type are decidedly more satisfying.

And tea experts confirm the opinions of grocers . . . and of those wise tea lovers who have made good Black teas their choice. They say that good Black teas offer you a better brew . . . a richer, full-flavored drink with a strength that is certain to satisfy.

If you are not already serving good Black tea, do so today!

SIT BACK in the rear seat of the 1935 Ford V-8—and change your idea of what an automobile ride is like!

A way has been found to give rear seat passengers the comfort of "a front seat ride!"

Ford has done this with a new engineering development—Full-floating Springbase with Comfort Zone Seating.

You might have been satisfied with nothing more than Comfort Zone Riding and the proved Ford V-8 engine together in one car. But the 1935 Ford V-8 offers you many other features almost as important.

It is a roomier car—with more leg room—wider, deeper seats. It strikes a new note in streamlined beauty. Interior fittings are almost luxurious. Large, soft-pressure tires are standard. Safety glass all around comes at no extra cost.

And, in addition to low purchase price, the new Ford V-8 gives you traditional Ford economy. It uses no more gas than a 4-cylinder car—has low oil consumption—seldom needs valve grinding or carbon removed.

3,000 EXPECTED AT WOMEN'S CONVENTION

Three thousand women, 2,500 of whom are voting delegates, are expected to attend the General Federation of Women's clubs convention to be held in Detroit June 4-12. Many Ohio clubs have elected their representatives and it is expected this state will have one of the largest delegations present.

Ohio is especially interested in the convention this year since Dr. Josephine L. Peirce, of Lima, is one of the candidates for president to be elected June 10.

Mrs. Roberta C. Lawson, of Tulsa, Okla., is Dr. Peirce's opponent. The two candidates are good friends. They traveled together to the Pan-Pacific conference for women held in Hawaii last summer and shared the same room at Federation headquarters during the mid-winter board meeting in the capital in January.

Both candidates are talented women. Dr. Peirce, now second vice president of the general federation, moved toward the top in the organization through her work in family finance. She established the first insurance policy for women in the home through a score of insurance companies, authored three booklets on family finance, which have won recognization in educational circles. She now heads the standardization committee of the organization which is working to obtain standardization manufactured foods with commercial labels. For years, prominent in Ohio welfare work, she has been named the only women member of the Ohio Relief commission by both Ex-governor George White and Gov. Martin L. Davey.

Mrs. Lawson, now first vice president of the general federation, has a long record of work in Oklahoma clubs and her state considers her one of its foremost women. She has an excellent musical education, having studied with Scharwenka. She gives programs of Indian music and her museum of American Indian history is said to be one of the most extensive in the country. She is a member of Will Rogers' committee to dispense his charity fund for needy Oklahomans.

Taking the Mystery out of Banking

No air of mystery hangs over the way we do business in this bank. While we admittedly do follow very strict rules in the handling of many transactions, there are good reasons for these rules, and our officers take especial pains to see that these reasons are explained and understood.

As a result, we find that our depositors and those who have occasion to borrow money, are ready and willing to work in friendly harmony with us. We say "yes" to borrowers as frequently as conditions permit. But, when we do have to say "No," we do not lose a friend.

There is no mystery in banking at this bank.

RETAIL MERCHANTS

FOLLOWING SUGGESTIONS made at a recent meeting of the Chamber of Commerce, Circleville merchants may organize themselves into a group to function as a retail merchants' committee affiliated with the Chamber of Commerce. This, we believe, is a progressive move and one that will develop into a worthwhile organization, not only to the merchants themselves but to the entire community.

As the speaker pointed out, local merchants should not be concerned about local competition, but they should be concerned about competitors in near by cities. Local merchants should work hand in hand to promote local business, to increase Circleville's trading area, and to make Circleville a better place to trade. When that is done, it is up to the individual merchant to promote his own line and to get his share of the business that comes to the city. If he can't get it today, his competitor will. And it works both ways—perhaps some of his competitor's customers will come to him tomorrow. If Circleville's business can be increased $50,000 a year, wouldn't each and every merchant have a proportionate share in that increase, according to the amount of effort put forth and the service rendered?

We believe the local Chamber of Commerce, along with the retail merchants' committee, can and will accomplish a great deal for the city and community as a whole. We would like to see a definite program outlined — a program that would have for its goal the completion of any worthwhile projects that would help Circleville — and no slowing down until the goal is reached and the work finished.

LENT

WHAT place should the ancient church custom of Lent have in modern life? It is remarked that this custom originated in an age when there was a much greater tendency for people to retire to lives of severe asceticism. People of that type would feel that a period of withdrawal from ordinary worldly activities would bring human nature into a closer touch with spiritual realities.

Today we have gone on to a very practical age, when people demand that any religious custom justify itself by results achieved for humanity. But the same old faults that debased human life centuries ago still afflict us. There is the same selfish attitude, the same grasping for material things, the same disposition to ignore the true meaning of life.

As we hurry through this world, it is well to ask from time to time, what are we here for, and what are we expected to do, and what power placed us here? Lent offers answers to those questions. Not so many people observe Lent now by strenuous exercises of physical self denial. But there are plenty of them who do feel it beneficial to make some personal sacrifice, who go slow on frivolous pursuits, who listen to spiritual voices. There is no doubt that such ones gain a benefit.

The present age overdoes the pursuit of pleasure and material satisfactions. It drives so hard that the mind and body are worn out before their time. A benefit is gained merely by slowing up on these pursuits, even if there was no religious stimulation. If in addition, people seek help from sources of spiritual inspiration, there will be a double gain.

RISING FOOD PRICES

THERE will not be much elation on the part of the prudent housewife in Secretary Wallace's announcement that food costs on the average for the first six months of 1935 will be 11 per cent higher than in the last six months of 1934. If she happens to be one of the millions of women in families on the dole, she is liable to be bewildered and may even be angry "on principle."

It is one of the sad ironies of the depression that the aid given in a planned economy to enable a large producing group to increase its prices and thus come more largely into the buying class should impose the severest hardships on the group least capable of bearing them. When food prices are up 11 per cent it requires no mathematician to see that in this field the buying power of the charity dollar has shrunk 10 per cent. And this applies equally to diminishing little hoards of "rainy day" dollars in millions of families.

Food prices, as a matter of fact, have not risen so sharply as those of other necessities, many of which are being done without or used more sparingly by the desperately poor. From this situation there is no prospect of speedy escape. Actually in the AAA and elsewhere the government is fostering higher prices. The theory on which it is acting is that if and when prices generally get back to the prevailing levels of 1925 and 1926, production and consumption will more nearly balance. Then, it is assumed, there will be gainful employment at fair pay for all the able bodies who desire it and prosperity will be with us again.

GYPSY GIRL

THE STORY OF AN IMPASSIONED ROMANCE

FICTION

by McDONALD FLEADER

READ THIS FIRST:

Consuelo, a beautiful gypsy girl, longs to dance with all the world at her feet. In love with her are the Dummy, a deaf mute, and Marcu, both members of her tribe. She has only hate for her mother, Anica, but is extremely fond of her father, Girtza.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 2

CONSUELO LEFT the fire then and flung her arms around her father.

"Always for you, papa."

His roughened hand stroked the dusty blackness of her hair.

"Always?" His eyes twinkled. 'Always, is a long, long time, little frog."

She pulled his beard and kissed the tip of his nose.

"Then for a long, long time I shall be good, wise one, but when I turn bad—oh, what a bad one I'll be!"

"A bad one you are now!" A new voice spoke. "Falling all over the gorgio sheriff like a common slut!" A tall handsome fellow stood beside them, arms crossed, earrings glittering.

"Marcu!" The one stern word of reproval from the father.

Silence.

"It is true." It was Anica, the mother. "She acted like a real bad one. If that gorgio was to get her alone—no telling what would happen, and no one could blame him."

"I'd cut his white neck, low dog that he is!" growled Marcu.

"And go to the gorgio jail and be hung!" Anica sneered. "She is not worth that."

"Oh, leave me alone, will you? It is my affair if I flirt with the sheriff. It is my affair if I kiss him. It—"

Marcu caught her arm.

"Did you kiss him?" he demanded.

She shook off his hand.

"What is that to you? I would kiss him a thousand times over before I would so much as look on you with favor, conceited fellow!"

"Will you stop this haggling?" Girtza bellowed at them. "Get back to your work, Anica. Now you two get along friendly together. I'm tired of this all of the time. Marcu, you have no right over my daughter—not yet!"

"When am I going to marry her then?"

"In time."

"Not if I know it," snapped Consuelo.

"Consuelo!" Again Girtza.

"Listen, papa, I'll never marry him. I hate him!"

Marcu laughed. His hand slipped into the folds of the silk blouse and drew forth a small wad of paper. Instantly the eyes of the girl were upon him.

"A little trinket I picked up today," he said.

"What is it?" Consuelo asked.

Leisurely, he unfolded the paper, his eyes intent upon the rapt face before him.

"Something for the girl who loves me," he said.

Consuelo drew back, contempt written on her face. But then, almost against her will, her eyes were drawn to the bright thing in his hand. An exclamation of delight left her lips and her tan fingers reached for the lovely thing.

"A bracelet of gold, with a ruby!" she gasped, eyes fastened upon it. "How beautiful!"

"For the girl who loves me," Marcu repeated.

For an instant her smile flashed to him. Quick as lightning her fingers grabbed for the ornament. However before they possessed it, the man pulled her to him and his warm lips found hers. He held her passionately, the blood surging to his brain.

There was a mad scream from the girl as she tore herself from him. She spat upon the ground and rubbed her mouth with the back of her hand.

"Dog! Son of a dog! Thief!" Oath followed oath. She reached out and beat against his chest with her closed fists.

Marcu laughed at her and there was a touch of madness in the sound. He'd have her some day.

"Always is a long, long time."

God, but she was desirable! Perhaps a diamond.

And Girtza watching them, smiled to himself and went back to his card playing. He was thinking what a good wife she would make Marcu. But from the shadows, the Dummy watched, his hands clenched, his heart torn with agony.

As the morning sun peeped over the hill the camp roused itself to the duties of the day. Shouts and good-natured bantering awakened the lazy ones. The embers of last night's fire were stirred and dry sticks added. Soon the kettle of potatoes sang pleasantly through the confusion of the haphazard morning work. Bacon, pilfered the day before, sizzled in the frying pan. Eggs appeared mysteriously from the loose-fitting blouse of one of the men and were fried in the hot grease.

Presently the entire camp had gathered in a circle around the fire and each took his share of food. As Consuelo seated herself cross-legged on the ground, her mother's black eyes wandered to the gaudy bracelet on the girl's arm.

"You might have gotten one for me," she chided Marcu.

"Yes, I might have. One is enough to get me in the gorgio jail without the risk of taking two." Marcu turned to Consuelo. "Don't wear it in town this afternoon, my little lamb."

"Some day I'll have things that aren't stolen." Voice sullen. She reached for another strip of bacon.

"You've had your share, pig," said Anica.

"I suppose I'm to go hungry." Consuelo mouthed the bacon and helped herself to another slice before she continued. "I eat as much as I want. Who is it brings in the silver coins? Not you. The white people pay me to dance for them. They'll pay me twice as much to tell fortunes as they pay you."

Anica turned to Girtza.

"Nice way your daughter talks to her mother."

"Modesty is a virtue in a young girl," Girtza reproved.

"White girls have no virtue, why should I? All right, send me to the wagon—" But before the order came she sprang up and, dancing a little zig-zag step, started for the trail that led to the creek.

Anica moved closer to Girtza and laid her hand on his shoulder. Her face was hidden from him.

"This is what comes of living in this cursed America. When I was a little girl back on the Danube my father would have beaten me if I had dared to say the things she says. You let her sneer in my face and in your face and you're getting so old you don't notice. You've got to do something to her, I tell you, my old one. You neglect your whip and let it hang idle in the wagon. Now it hasn't been so many years that you used to beat me and yet you do not touch the little bad one. A gypsy chief keeps his whip in his hand. Have you forgotten how to be a chief?" Her lips were close to his ear, her hands gripping his shoulders, her voice low so that the others might not hear.

He shook her off.

"Now maybe I am a fool where the girl is concerned but this is not the land where the gypsy is king. There are times when I would cut their throats, these gorgios, these dogs who lord over us. Insult upon insult that I bear from them—" His words were angry, but his face was sad. He looked down at her.

"You are right, my wife. I must be getting old or I would steal the money and pack the tribe back to the old country where we might sing and dance and be free—ah, but even there they are not free, for starvation walks close to their heels. Here we have food and can roam over the roads as we will and because of this I hold back my knife when the gorgio insults me and mine. I have learned that to hold one's temper is a fine thing, and so I have held my temper with you and treated you with kindness and understanding, but now I have had enough. I'll have you say no more about Consuelo. In due time she will marry Marcu and he will have her to contend with and I doubt me but what he'll take pleasure in beating her. As for you—don't try to act as young as she is—and cut out your whining and nagging! You tell me to beat her. Well, I'll tell you, my wife, that I do what I please and my arm is still strong and the whip no weaker. You will not forget it!"

He turned on his heel and walked away from her.

The woman stared after him. She was trembling. She wiped the drops of perspiration that formed on her upper lip. Again she was afraid of him. It had not been for years that he had spoken thus to her.

Consuelo returned from the brook, her face and legs washed, but washed as a child washes—still streaked with dirt. She saw Anica crouched by the fire and instantly her walk became stealthy. She caught the beads in her hand, imprisoning their tell-tale jingle and crossed the clearing to their wagon. With a backward glance she slid into the open end of the van and pulled the faded curtains together.

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND

"Kansas City Princess," the Warner Bros. production now showing at the Grand Theatre, promises to be a milestone in the life of Hugh Herbert, featured comedian in the cast.

For the first time in eight years, Hugh kisses a fair lady in front of the camera.

Moreover, it's only the second time he has kissed an actress for picture purposes.

Hugh broke his long osculatory fast with Glenda Farrell in the final scenes for "Kansas City Princess," while Director William Keighley fervently exhorted him to "make it a good one" as the two pairs of lips met.

AT THE CLIFTONA

Style and cut of gowns worn in Egypt during the time of Cleopatra are almost identical with evening gowns of the present time, it was discovered by Cecil B. DeMille, director of Paramount's "Cleopatra," now at the Cliftona Theatre.

The costumes made up for Claudette Colbert, who plays the title role in the picture, though adhering to authentic detail, are easily adaptable to modern wear.

Editorial Of The Day

YOUNG AMERICA'S IDEAL
(Coshocton Tribune)

The average high school youngster values good physical health above everything else, if a check made at Thomas Jefferson high school, in New York City, is any criterion.

Boys and girls at that institution agreed that physical fitness is their chief aspiration. Next to it the boys ranked wisdom, likeability, service, wealth, and fame.

The girls shifted the order a little with the boys in everything save that they valued appreciation of beauty more than world wealth.

If one wanted to be very serious and profound, one probably could draw a number of morals from all this. One could write, for instance, that it all shows a distressing superficiality on the part of the nation's youth, and so on and so forth.

But the more we think about it, the more we feel that it proves only this: that these high school youngsters are normal, healthy youngsters, interested in precisely those things one would expect normal, healthy youngsters to be interested in.

Dinner Stories

Step by Step

A youngster asked his father how war began. "Well," said his father, "suppose America quarreled with England, and—" "But," interrupted the mother, "America must not quarrel with England." "I know, he answered, "but I am taking a hypothetical instance." "You are misleading the child," said mother. "No, I am not," he answered. "Yes, you are." "I tell you I am not! It's outrageous—" "All right Dad," said the boy. "Don't get excited, I think I know how wars begin."

Heard & Seen

BY KAY JAY

A GET-TOGETHER

That was a fine meeting of the Chamber of Commerce, Tuesday night at the New American hotel. All lines of business, industry, trades and professions were represented, and it's good for them to rub elbows with each other around the dinner table. All have their individual business cares and worries, all have problems to solve that those in other lines know nothing about, but all have one common interest—to unite in making Circleville a bigger and better business center and a better place in which to live.

The speaker of the evening used a word I had never heard before, not an uncommon occurrence by any means. But this word struck me as being applicable to many of us in the ranks. In speaking of leadership in community activities, he stressed that "followship" is just as essential; and, in the language of the street, he said a knowhit. Leadership without "followship" is just as helpless as a quarterback without a football team. There's work to be done by every member of the team, whether in athletics, business or community welfare, and every resident should put something back into the community which provides him with a livelihood something in the way of service to his town, it's institutions and his fellow citizens. It's not a one-man job—it's your job and mine. And it's fine to get together and talk things over.

And the food, an important part of every gathering, was excellent. The steak was as tender as a mother's heart, and one wisecracker at our table said he was going to try to get the name and address of Charley's butcher.

SIGNS OF SPRING

Giving sidewalks in the business section a bath ..... Paper hanger in clean, white overalls, carrying a roll of paper (wall), paste pail and brush, hurrying along the street ..... Baseballs and bats on display in store windows ..... Harry Steinhauser without a coat ..... Store doors wide open ..... Almost everybody washing windows ..... Demand for garden seeds ..... Boxes of onion sets on the sidewalk .. .. .. Housewife, wearing man's hat and canvass gloves, puttering around the lawn ..... Husbands eating up town while housecleaning is going on ..... Odor of burning rubbish in the air ..... Night crawlers ..... Arguments about fishing ..... Sassafras tea .... Rambling along the river looking for a likely spot to fish .... Washing the family bus .... Kids up early in the morning .... Mykrantz' drug store dog, "Pluto," asleep on the sidewalk ..... Boys with muddy knees and bruised knuckles—marbles.

CLOSE—VERY CLOSE

I've found some new kinfolks. Took quite a while for one of the linotype operators and I to figure it out, but here it is: His mother's sister's step-son is married to my sister's daughter. That ought to be worth a Scotch treat.

Foot Gets Into Trouble Because It's Too Covered

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

IN DISCUSSING diseases of the hand a few weeks ago, we took occasion to point out that the nature of the work the hand does is logically responsible for its most frequent disabilities. Its most frequent disabilities are infections, and they occur because the hand is the prehensile organ of the body—thrust out to handle the outside world, constantly exposed to heat, cold, abrasions and cuts.

Dr. Clendening

The same sort of a thesis may be made out for the foot. Its difficulties arise from two sources—one because it is the weight-bearing organ of the body. The other is just the opposite of the cause of the hand's troubles. The hand gets into trouble because it isn't protected enough. The foot gets into trouble because in a state of civilization it is constantly protected. By shoes.

Shoes! Would we have been more miserable or less miserable if we had never learned to wear shoes? If we did not wear them, our feet would be just as subject to infection as our hands. That is one score for shoes. And if we had developed sidewalks and paving stones and not developed shoes, the cold would have caused more rheumatism and chilblains and such like things. There are probably many products of civilization, such as street car steps and automobile clutches, whose existence depends solely on the fact that we had already invented shoes. I don't know whether anybody sees what I am driving at, but to me it seems a profound and touching bit of philosophic thought.

At any rate, shoes were invented. The trouble is, they have been modified constantly. The first shoes were all right—sandals protecting the soles, with a few thongs binding them loosely to the ankle. The toes were left relatively free. They weren't rubbed by anything, and there was ventilation and a chance for the foot to "breathe".

Soft slippers and heavy soles were all right, too, but then man's ancient enemy came on the scene—the lust for beauty. The feet didn't look pretty enough in sandals and slippers, so more elaborate designs came in. In the northern climates, away from our old ancestral home around the equator, more protection was needed.

At any rate we have the abomination of the modern shoe. And by all means it has to be beautiful. People can't reconcile themselves to the truth that for most feet it is impossible to get a shoe that will be both comfortable and handsome. So they have to reconcile themselves to corns and bunions and broken arches.

Another cause of ill foot health is the shoe clerk who hasn't an exact fit in stock for some Milquetoast, and persuades him that what he has will do. It is one of the fundamental policies of this department that the most important articles of wearing apparel you buy are your shoes.

Bill to License Drivers Beaten

COLUMBUS, March 7 — The Handley senate bill to license Ohio automobile drivers today went the route of all similar legislation proposed in the legislature regularly for the last five or six sessions. Passed by the senate, it was defeated overwhelmingly in the lower house.

Democrats and Republicans alike attacked the proposal as of no consequence other than providing more jobs at the expense of the farmer and worker.

Its sponsor in the House, Rep. Lawrence Kane (R) Cincinnati, assured his colleagues drivers' license legislation would reduce motor car accidents 20 per cent, but this assertion was questioned by Rep. Robert F. Kaser (D) Sidney, who led the opposition.

"I cannot see where this bill would save a single life," said Kaser, "Rural Ohio drives safely and sanely and does not need this law. If Cleveland and Cincinnati feel the need for it, it should be made to apply especially to them."

Burden on Most

Rep. Grant Ward (R) Columbus, pictured the Handley bill, which would have fixed the license fee at 60 cents as amended before its final defeat, as "a burden on the 95 per cent who drive carefully."

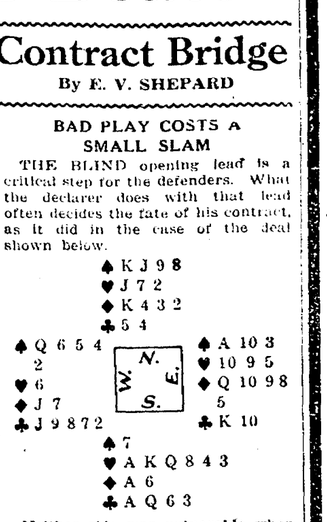
Contract Bridge

By E. V. SHEPARD

BAD PLAY COSTS A SMALL SLAM

THE BLIND opening lead is a critical step for the defenders. What the declarer does with that lead often decides the fate of his contract, as it did in the case of the deal shown below.



Neither side was vulnerable when South dealt. Bidding went: South, 2-Hearts; North, 2-Spades, to show his barely biddable suit and single quick trick; South, 3-Clubs; North, 3-No Trumps; South, 5-Hearts; North, 6-Hearts, without knowing why he did it.

Not wanting to lead up to declarer's clubs, West led his fourth-best spade, through the weak suit bid by dummy. The "rule-of-eleven" (11 minus 4 equals 7) showed seven higher cards out than the four led by West. The declarer held one of these. Dummy held four higher cards. Therefore East must hold two higher spades than that led by his partner. The higher spades missing were the Ace, Q, 10, 6 and 5. If East held the A-Q it could make no difference which honor was played from dummy. It was too dangerous to play the 8. South should play either the K or J. It would be dangerous and unusual for West to lead blindly away from the Ace of spades. Probably East held the missing Ace. The J was the proper card to play from dummy, but the K was played, just because the declarer held a singleton. Of course the Ace won.

East led back his 10 of diamonds. West played his J. Dummy's K won. A club was led back. The Q finesse held the trick. The Ace of clubs won the next trick. All would have been well had East held three clubs. All would have been well had the J of spades been played on the opening lead. Then a return lead of clubs could have been ruffed with dummy's J, and the last club held by South could have been discarded upon dummy's K of spades. Not being able to discard upon a good spade in dummy, North's 7 ruffed the third club led, and East overruffed with his 9, securing the trick necessary to defeat the small slam contract.

East led back a trump, which was silly. Declarer's Q took the trick. South led his last club and dummy ruffed with the J, shutting out East's 10. The declarer put himself in with the Ace of diamonds, then spread his hand, as the last trump must fall. It would have been safer for South to have ruffed a spade, to gain entry to his hand. He would indeed have felt sick had West held the last missing trump and ruffed a diamond

RTSMEN OF HIO GATHER; AVEY SPEAKS

Task of Naming New Conservation Officer Faced by Executive

COLUMBUS, March 7—Sportsmen from every section of Ohio are expected to converge on the state capital enmasse tonight to press their campaigns for sectional candidates for the $5,000-a-year job of state conservation commissioner.

The conference, an annual joint meeting of the Ohio Conservation council and the Ohio League of Sportsmen, has taken on added importance this year, since Governor Martin L. Davey has promised sportsmen's group officials he will take two major steps to aid the cause of outdoorsmen during the conference.

He will sign the bill of Rep. J. H. McGregor (R) of Coshocton-co, which will restrict the use of sportsmen's funds to use by the conservation division only. The measure has been passed by both house and senate. No money may be diverted from the sportsmen's funds, under the measure, except by express consent of the council.

Discuss Candidates.

While Davey has given sportsmen no assurance that he will announce his selection of a state conservation commissioner to fill the post of W. H. Reinhart of Sandusky, present chief of the division, during the session, he has promised to meet with executives of the various sportsmen's bodies to discuss the 15 or 20 applicants for the job.

It will be no easy task for him to please Ohio sportsmen with his selection of a conservation commissioner. For nearly every organization of fishermen, hunters, dog fanciers and other related groups has at least one candidate from the ranks.

While observers have predicted that Reinhart will undoubtedly be replaced, there are a great many sportsmen, friends of the present chief, who are planning to be on hand when the governor opens the way for his supporters to "turn on the pressure."

Former officials of the League of Ohio Sportsmen, the state Izaak Walton leagues and even some men in present official capacity are among those said to be under consideration for the appointment.

Talk at Banquet

Gov. Davey will speak at a banquet this evening and President Henry Pfeiffer of Kenton has planned to name a joint committee following his address, of state senators, representatives and sportsmen, to study proposed legislation affecting the conservation division.

Their drive for a ban against diversion of sportsmen's funds to other departments apparently successful, officials of the group today planned to push their drive for more flexible powers for the division, to take from the legislature the authority of changing open season, game limits and penalties.

WHITLINGER TO LEAD BUCKEYES

COLUMBUS, March 7—Warren Whitlinger, star forward on Ohio State university's basketball team, today had been elected to captain the Bucks in the 1935-36 cage season by his teammates.

The Zanesville youth was the high point man for the squad this year and the third leading scorer in the Big Ten. He was chosen after the university awarded eight varsity "O" letters to members of the team.

COLUMBIA IN TIE

NEW YORK, Mar. 7—Columbia university was in a tie with Pennsylvania for the eastern intercollegiate basketball league leadership today by virtue of a 52 to 29 walloping of Harvard last night. It was their second victory over the Crimson this year, and the scoring set a season's record for the circuit.

Tough Luck Bill

Bill McKechnie, manager of the Boston Braves where Babe Ruth will hang out this season, is one of the tough luck boys of the big pastime—Though he has been repeatedly successful no good has ever come from his effort.

As a ball player, McKechnie was a fair shortstop and third baseman. As a manager he has been great, but the rewards have been disillusioning.

He went lame as a third baseman 15 years ago. He was named manager of the Pirates in 1922. Under him the club finished third three times in a row. Then in 1925 the Pirates crashed through and beat Washington in a seven-game world series. The team finished third again in 1926 and Bill was eased out in favor of Donie Bush.

McKechnie popped up in 1928 as manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, and won a pennant his first year there. The Yankees, with Ruth rampant, took four straight games from the Redbirds in the world series. Those wallops of Babe's helped to sow the seed of doubt about McKechnie's wizardry in the Cardinal front office. In mid-season of 1929 Bill was hustled off to Rochester to manage the Cardinal farm team, trading places with Billy Southworth. He won a pennant in 1929 at Rochester, too.

After Judge Emil Fuchs took a brief but disastrous whirl at managing the tail-end Braves in 1929, McKechnie was brought to the rescue in the following year.

Improves Team

He has improved the Braves steadily since then, without having much money to work with. It seemed he had a home won for himself at last on the Boston bench. Judge Fuchs liked him and he was popular in Beantown.

Now—along comes Ruth, ostensibly to share the management of the team (and of Babe Ruth) with McKechnie.

Bill couldn't be blamed if he got up on a soapbox somewhere and told the world that the only numbers on the dice are two, three and twelve.

Michigan Favored to Win Big Ten Indoor Meet; Owens Entered

CHICAGO, March 7—Headed by a sensational 60 yard dash field, the track events in the annual Big Ten indoor championships at the University of Chicago fieldhouse Saturday promise to provide one thrill after another.

The graduation of such aces as Charles Hornqstel, who won both the 880 and the mile and Ivan Fuqua, creator of a new 440 record in last year's meet, should make for closer races in those events this year, so clearly did the two Hoosier stars dominate their field.

Michigans' track team, conceded a chance to win nearly every event, is the outstanding favorite to take first in this twenty-first annual event.

In the lone sprint on the program, Willis Ward of Michigan will defend the title against such sophomore topnotchers as Jimmy Owen of Iowa; Jesse Owens, Ohio State's sensational negro who recently won the Millrose dash and finished second in the national championships, and Sam Stoller of Michigan, who has twice defeated Ward this season.

BAER TO WATCH NEGRO CONTENDER

SAN FRANCISCO, March 7—Max Baer, heavyweight champion and his manager Ancil Hoffman, will be in ringside seats tomorrow night when Joe Louis, Detroit's sensational negro heavyweight, meets Donald ("Red") Barry, Washington, D. C., in a ten-round bout.

Baer intends to get a first hand slant at Louis, the lad mentioned as a possible challenger for the heavyweight crown.

Way Out

The Senate Post Office Committee has been offered an interesting suggestion for a way out of its dilemma on what to do about Huey Long's resolution to investigate Jim Farley.

The Committee has been worriedly sitting on the lid of the resolution for some weeks—definitely opposed to it yet afraid to veto it for fear Huey will capitalize the idea that the Administration dared not expose the Postmaster General to a public airing.

The proposed solution is risky but bold.

The committee would agree to undertake the probe. But with an added provision—that it also be authorized to investigate Huey.

Committee members to whom the idea was broached agreed that it was ingenious. But they were dubious of the practicability of investigating Huey.

It was a job they would like very much to see done, but none wanted to tackle it.

As one member put it: "Sure, we'd all like to see the cat belled. But no one wants to do the belling."

◈ ◈ ◈

Possible

A significant change has taken place behind the scenes on Capitol Hill regarding legislation for fixing the work-week.

When the 30-hour measure was revived early in the session, floor leaders brushed it aside as not having a chance.

Privately, they are talking diffrently now.

They say there is strong possibility that a work-week limiting bill may be enacted. They express doubt that it will be a rigid 30-hour measure, more likely a compromise at a higher figure, permitting certain exceptions.

The fact that Congressional leaders are voicing these views has greatly alarmed industrial moguls.

Reason for the changed Congressional situation is the Administration's abandonment of all pretence that the NRA can do anything about reducing unemployment rolls. Also there is growing pressure by organized labor for enactment of a statutory work-week.

Few recall the fact that the Senate passed a 30-hour bill in the 1933 special session.

And it was this action which prompted the President, who was against the measure, to take up the Baruch-Johnson suggestion of a National Industrial Administration.

COUNCIL DISCUSSES AGE LIMIT; MUCH OTHER BUSINESS

MARION ASKS HOW MUCH IS DUE HOSPITAL IN FEBRUARY

Council attacked the much-disputed age limitation ordinance for control of the police and fire departments from a different angle Wednesday evening but the result was not passage o the ordinance but a motion to turn it over to Solicitor Carl Leist for revision.

Councilman W. H. Reid, chairman of the ordinance committee, said he believed the revision would result in the ordinance's passage at the next meeting March 20.

Reid reported the ordinance out for a vote amending its age limit to be 24 and 35 except for ex-service men when it would be 24 and 40. His motion to vote on the ordinance worked in that manner resulted in a second but during discussion Councilman Frank Marion said he believed the chief's job should be available to any man 40 years old whether or not he is an ex-service man.

This move resulted in some discussion with the final result that the ordinance was placed in Leist's hands.

Trustees of the fireman's pension board, through Secretary Robert Wolfe, proposed the ordinance to read a 24-35 for laymen and 24-40 for ex-service men.

"How Much is Due?"
Marion Inquires

When Safety Director L. T. Shaner reported to council that receipts at the hospital amounted to $628 in February, Councilman Marion asked if he knew how much business was done during the month and how much money is still outstanding. He said: "We hear reports of the revenue but we don't know anything about how much was not collected."

Shaner promised to have these figures in the report of the March business.

A request that seven or eight rooms be painted at the hospital was made by Mr. Shaner. He reported installation of guard rails in front of the hospital.

Finances Listed
As of March 6

The city's finances as of March 6 were reported by Councilmen Ben Gordon.

The treasury holds the following funds:

General, $934.19.
Library, $1,832.02.
Marcus Brown, $896.72.
Auto license, $3,307.81.
Gas tax, $1,286.09.
Berger hospital, $21.53.
Total, $8,278.36.

McCrady Confirmed
As Chief of Police

Council voted unanimously to approve William F. McCrady as chief of the police department succeeding W. F. Warner who served for 19 years.

Mayor Cady informed council that the civil service commission's eligible list expires March 9 which means that in case of accident or any other difficulty there would be no one available for police or fire departments.

Money for Smith
Ditch Withdrawn

Delay caused by failure to reach an agreement with the owners of land south of the city permitting the city to cross the property with an improvement of the Smith ditch has resulted in the commissioners withdrawing the $4,000 grant.

It is possible the money will be available later.

Leist to Request
Action From PUC

Solicitor Carl Leist told council that he had visited the utilities commission in regard to obtaining a complete valuation of the Ohio Water Service Co. properties here and had been told that the commission's force was so depleted that such a survey would be impossible at this time.

He was told, however, to write a letter asking information and that all details now held by the commission would be put together in a report.

The report is sought with the city considering purchase of the water works.

Bill for Operation
Is Sent to Council

A bill sent to the city by W. H. Taylor, safety director of Wilmington, for services and hospital expense totalling $76.50 for an emergency operation of John W. Kuhen was placed in the hands of the committee on laws and claims, Dan Ryan chairman.

Kuhen, the letter says, was stricken while in Wilmington and it was necessary to remove his appendix. He was a resident of Circleville, the safety director contended, thus the city should pay the bill. Dr. Kelley Hale was the operating surgeon.

Cady's Collections
In February Noted

Mayor Cady collected $18.35 in fines, $1 in licenses, $8.70 in fees and $18.70 in bonds, a total of $46.75 during February, council was informed.

Questions and Answers

Should honey be stored in a refrigerator? Will it deteriorate if it is left out of the refrigerator?

Honey keeps best, tastes best and pours best if kept where it is dry and warm. Too low a temperature causes it to become too thick and slow pouring. Honey may crystallize but it will not spoil if it is kept at room temperature.

What is wild rice? How should it be cooked?

Wild rice is a native American rice grown in Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota and is best known as feed for wild game. It can be cooked very much like the more familiar rice, by boiling or steaming. The rice grains are elongated in shape, greenish in color compared to other rice.

Is tapioca healthful for children?

Tapioca is a good energy food in itself and is recommended for children because it combines readily with dietary necessities such as eggs, milk and fruit. Tapioca supplies starch and care should be exercised to prevent overcooking. Too long cooking may result in an unpleasant, gummy texture that is not at all desirable.

How long should fish be cooked? Is there a rule to guide me in timing the cooking?

The minutes required for cooking fish would vary with the method of cooking to be employed. Here is a description of the appearance of fish tissue when done, which may help you. When fish has been cooked sufficiently the flesh will fall easily from the bone, will be an opaque white in color, and should be tender and juicy. Overcooking will dry out the fish and render it unpalatable.

What kind of sauce is best for fish?

There is a great variety of sauces that enhance the flavors of fish. Tartar sauce is probably the best known accompaniment for fish dishes. Make it by adding 1 teaspoon onion juice, 1 tablespoon finely minced sweet pickle, 1 teaspoon minced capers, and 1 teaspoon minced olives to 1 cup of tart mayonnaise. This sauce is especially good for deep fat fried fish or for croquettes.

Lemon Butter Sauce is made of ½ cup butter melted, to which is added 2 tablespoons of lemon juice, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley and a dash of paprika.

Mustard Cream Gravy is especially good with mackerel. Mix 2 tablespoons flour and 4 teaspoons of dry mustard, and make a cream sauce by adding ¾ cup butter and 1½ cups boiling water. When thick, add 2 teaspoons of Worcestershire sauce. Just before serving, add 3 tablespoons vinegar.

For Baked or Boiled Fish

Spanish sauce is very delicious with baked or boiled fish. It includes:

¼ C. chopped stuffed olives
¼ C. chopped onion
¼ C. chopped green pepper
¼ C. olive oil
3 tsp. flour
1 C. fish stock
1 tsp. tarragon vinegar
4 tsp. lemon juice
Salt to taste
Paprika

Fry olives, onions and green peppers in oil until onions are browned slightly. Add flour, stirring to mix well. Then add fish stock and cook, stirring constantly until thick and smooth. Add vinegar and lemon juice, and salt if needed. Pour over fish and dust with paprika.

WASH OUT 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

Win Back Pep . . . Vigor . . . Vim

Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 MILES of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy.

If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scanty amount causing burning and discomfort, the 15 MILES of kidney tubes need washing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains and dizziness.

If kidneys don't empty 3 pints a day and get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste matter, your body will take up these poisons causing serious trouble. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS . . . an old prescription . . . which has been used successfully by millions of kidney sufferers for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help to flush out the 15 MILES of kidney tubes. Get DOAN'S PILLS at your druggist. © 1934, Foster-Milburn Co.

HEARSE CARRYING CORPSE IS STOLEN

NEW YORK, March 7—There are limits even to a crime wave.

But the fellow who stole a hearse with a corpse in it in downtown Manhattan early today apparently doesn't know about them.

Joseph Goodcoff, Brooklyn undertaker, drove to New Brunswick, N. J., for the body of Mrs. Jennie Weintraub.

He returned this morning and decided he'd stop in a restaurant for a cup of coffee. He left the hearse parked outside.

Ten minutes later he emerged in time to see the hearse disappearing over the Manhattan bridge toward Brooklyn.

Police sounded a city-wide alarm.

The hearse later was found abandoned in Brooklyn, its silent occupant unmolested.

Ohio a legal relief organization which it has been without since the old law expired on Feb. 28.

Sen. Frank Whittemore (R) Akron, the minority floor leader, withdrew his motion to reconsider the vote by which the Anderson relief commission extender bill was defeated last week when the 12 Republicans refused to vote for the emergency clause.

He did this to permit the Democratic floor leader, Sen. Paul Yoder (D) Dayton, to have the bill recommitted to a senate committee where it will be re-drafted and re-submitted.

Whittemore said it was doubtful whether the bill in its new form would contain a clause putting relief workers under civil service, the issue which caused the previous deadlock between the governor and the Republican senators.

No Need for Clause

Since the federal relief administration is satisfied with the present Ohio relief personnel and appears determined to prevent a wholesale house-cleaning of employes by the governor or his subordinates, Whittemore said there was no urgent need for a civil service clause.

The large storage tank for Ashville's water system has been completed, the painting being finished Tuesday, and same has been accepted by the Board of Public Affairs.

To Avoid Magnetism

Faraday demonstrated back in 1845 that all substances, even the gases, are either attracted or repelled by a sufficiently powerful magnetic pole. For practical purposes, however, glass, indurated fiber, often called "red fiber," or vulcanized rubber are substances through which the magnetic pull has no effect.
